Cabinet surprised by Begin stand on autonomy talks

By DAVID LANDAU
Post Diplomatic Correspondent

There has been surprise and some consternation in government circles at the suddenness and the vehemence of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's insistence that Jerusalem serve as a venue for the autonomy talks.

The premier enunciated his position in two public statements this week, without formally consulting with the cabinet or with a cabinet committee.

Several policy makers, among them chief autonomy negotiator Interior Minister Yosef Burg, are understood to be uncomfortable with Begin's toughened stand.

Begin has declared that Israel will not attend resumed autonomy talks in Washington or Cairo if its own capital, Jerusalem, is "boycotted" by the negotiators.

Egypt has always refused to hold autonomy talks in Jerusalem — and it reiterated this refusal in public statements this week.

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig is sending a special envoy, Richard Fairbanks, to Israel and Egypt next week to try to resolve the problem of venue and get the long-deadlocked talks started again.

Fairbanks is expected to propose that an initial round be held in Washington, on the level of ministers. But Begin is not willing to send Israeli ministers to Washington unless it is understood and agreed in advance that a subsequent round of the talks will take place in Jerusalem.

Israeli officials concede that the premier's stand is in effect a hardening of Israel's previous position. During three years of spasmodic, desultory talks since the autonomy negotiations began in May 1979, Israel did in practice acquiesce to Egypt's tacit boycott of Jerusalem as a negotiating venue. The talks, when in Israel, were held in Herzliya or Tel Aviv.

Egypt's reasoning is that the future of Jerusalem is itself an issue in the negotiations — and therefore Jerusalem cannot serve as the Israeli venue for the talks.

UK, Argentina clash on terms for cease-fire

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter). — Britain charged last night that Argentina had wrecked a chance to reach an early cease-fire in the South Atlantic conflict between the two countries.

Britain also revealed that two of its jet-fighers were lost in the region of the Falkland Islands yesterday, apparently victims of extremely bad weather.

*During a day which brought con*flicting reports about the prospects for an agreement on resolving the Falklands crisis, British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym said Argentine intransigence had blocked the way to a cease-fire, which he said could have been in place by today.

Argentine government sources said that Buenos Aires wants a complete cessation of hostilities with Britain before talks begin on ending the crisis. They said this would mean a withdrawal of forces by both sides, an end to the British air and sea blockade around the Falklands and the lifting of economic sanctions imposed against Argentina after it occupied the Falklands.

"While there is war there cannot be diplomacy," one Argentine official said.

There have been no official reports of fighting around the Falklands since Tuesday, but Britain announced last night that two of its Harrier jump-jets were missing after disappearing during bad weather while on combat patrol yesterday.

Twenty Harriers were included in the vanguard of the British battle fleet sent into the South Atlantic.

British military sources said the loss of the two planes is a further serious blow to the task force, which had one Harrier shot down by anti-aircraft fire on Tuesday in a bombing raid on one of the Falklands' airfields.

On the same day, the British destroyer Sheffield was put out of action by a French-built Exocet missile, fired from an Argentine plane.

The diplomatic moves to end the disputes resolved around one initiative being taken through the UN and a second being sponsored by Peru with the assistance of U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

Earlier yesterday, both Britain and Argentina were reported to have responded positively to ideas by UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar for a peace settlement.

A British Foreign Office spokesman made clear that Britain prefers the initiative brought by Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry, which had been refined by Haig and then submitted to London.

However, Pym said last night that Argentina had frustrated the Peruvian initiative. "Had they genuinely wanted peace they would have ac-

Mubarak initiative aimed at pan-Arab peace with Israel

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak was in Khartoum yesterday for talks with Sudan leader Ja'afar Numeiri — the latest move in a flurry of diplomatic activity since Israel completed its withdrawal from Sinai less than two weeks ago, aimed at healing the rift between Egypt and the Arab opponents of its peace with Israel.

Numeiri, one of only three Arab leaders not to have severed ties with Egypt following the peace treaty, has been playing a prominent role in promoting such an Egyptian-Arab rapprochement.

Earlier this week, in an interview printed in Cairo's al-Ahram, Numeiri called for convening an Arab summit in the Egyptian capital, suggesting that Egypt's recovery of Sinai through peaceful negotiations should point the way to other Arab states whose land is still occupied by Israel.

Upon his return to Cairo from Sudan yesterday, Mubarak said any initiative for restoring the ruptured Egyptian-Arab ties must be taken by the Arabs themselves and indicated that Egypt is not in a hurry.

"I'm leaving every Arab country to join us at its convenient time," Mubarak said. "We did nothing against them. We did our best for solving the Middle East problem. So, whenever they decide to join Egypt, they are welcome. If not, they are also welcome."

Jordan's King Hussein — apparently now angling for a greater say in the future disposition of the West Bank, despite in 1974 giving up his right to represent the Palestinians living there to the PLO — yesterday made a similar call for a pan-Arab conference involving Egypt.

Like Numeiri, he, too, pointed to Egypt's recovery of Sinai as a precedent, noting that "the return of Sinai and the way it was accomplished was ideal, and the principle followed must be applied to all occupied Arab territory."

(Mubarak himself has been stressing the value of the Egypt-Israel treaty as a "precedent" for Jordan and possibly Syria to follow, noting in a speech to the Egyptian parliament on the morrow of Israel's withdrawal last month that Egypt's ultimate aim is to arrive at peace treaties between Israel and all its Arab neighbours, "devoid of the concept of territorial expansion and annexation.")

Ehrlich: 'Unless El Al is sold, it will collapse'

By JOSHUA BRILLIANT
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Deputy Prime Minister Simha Ehrlich, who heads the cabinet committee charged with grounding El Al on the Sabbath and Jewish religious holidays, yesterday recommended that the government sell the airline.

Agudat Yisrael MK Avraham Shapira, leader of the effort to stop Sabbath flights, said he would support a sale only if the buyers undertake not to fly the planes on holy days. Shapira also said he would see to it that the privately-owned Israeli airlines — Arkia and Maof — do not fly on the Sabbath. This could be achieved by denying government permits to work on the Sabbath, he said.

The High Court on Monday is to hear the El Al workers' and Histadrut's request for an injunction barring the government from

Stones thrown near Sharon in Gaza

Jerusalem Post Staff

A number of rocks thrown by Arab youths fell near Defence Minister Ariel Sharon during a visit yesterday to a refugee camp in the Gaza Strip.

Sharon discussed the recent outbreaks of violence with military and police officers at the Jebaliya camp.

He later told reporters he was "satisfied with the security situation and methods taken to deal with those who choose to break the law.

"I also stressed that armed force was not to be used unless a soldier's or policeman's life was in danger, as has been the case until now," he added.

After Sharon left, a number of girls demonstrated outside the camp, throwing stones at soldiers and passing vehicles.

The soldiers used tear gas to disperse the demonstrators.

Elsewhere in the strip, security forces used tear gas to disperse demonstrating high school students in Khan Yunis who threw stones at

Groundswell in Labour for Alignment breakup

By SARAH HONIG
Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Labour Party academics, among them prominent central committee members and figures very close to party chairman Shimon Peres, have organized into a grouping calling for the disbandment of the alignment with Mapam.

The opposition to continued partnership with Mapam has now turned into a veritable groundswell in Labour, and has spread to many groups who had previously not opposed the Alignment. The situation has grown so volatile that Mapam Secretary-General Victor Shemtov and others of his party's leadership will informally confer this morning with Peres and high-ranking Labour executive members to discuss the new situation.

There is considerable dissatisfaction with the state of the Alignment in both Labour and Mapam, but while in Mapam the opposition to the Alignment has not spread beyond where it had been thus far, it is mushrooming in Labour.

The group of academics, which has been meeting in recent days to organize its campaign, complains that the latest manifestation of Alignment disunity in the Knesset, when Mapam refused to vote for the Labour settlement guidelines, demonstrates that the "Alignment's usefulness is over, and from now on it is nothing but a hindrance.

"It is clear that the parties which constitute the Alignment cannot agree on anything, and all issues are watered down beyond recognition through meaningless compromises," one of the group said.

They note that the only thing which insured a bloc vote by all Alignment MKs last Tuesday was the compromise suggested at the last moment by MK Yossi Sarid to the effect that instead of endorsing Labours detailed settlement plan

Uruguay's foreign minister due here today

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Uruguay's Foreign Minister, Estanislao Otero Valdes, is scheduled to arrive today for an of*ficial visit on the invitation of* Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir. He will be staying in Israel for five days, which is longer than a usual official visit, and this is seen here as a gesture of friendship.

The first two days will be spent on a private visit in Jerusalem and the North. On Sunday, he will start his working visit with Shamir, and will also call on President Yitzhak Navon, Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Knesset members and others. His visit is regarded as particularly important, since Uruguay has sent soldiers to the MFO in Sinai.

Police find second body in TA drug-gang killing

By JEFFREY HELLER
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Police yesterday found Michel Nahmias's bullet-riddled corpse buried near the Ramat Gan stadium, and said the body had been moved recently from its original clandestine grave on the Yarkon River.

The discovery of the remains came 13 months after Nahmias, 25, and his girlfriend Shulamit Sheli, 26, disappeared following the arrest of a heroin courier they apparently recruited on behalf of the "Turkish connection" drug smuggling gang.

Police contend that Nahmias and Sheli were murdered by other members of the gang who feared the pair would implicate them under interrogation.

Reputed Tel Aviv drug boss Shmaya Angel, his wife Sara, Mordechai Rubin and Haim Shushan will be indicted on Sunday in connection with the slayings, police say.

*Two state's witnesses led in*vestigators last March 1 to Sheli's body, buried in sand dunes near Caesarea. But a search of the riverfront area where Nahmias's corpse *was believed to be interred only tur*ned up one of his legs.

Police said yesterday that about a month before the gang was arrested last March, Nahmias's corpse was moved under the cover of darkness, three kilometres upriver to a new grave in the Yarkon Park near the stadium.

A police spokesman said the body had been transferred "out of fear that investigators would one day crack the case and find it." He would not disclose which of the gang members is believed to have moved the corpse.

Bank of Israel lost $370m. by overcautious management

By MEIR MERHAV
and AVI TEMKIN
Post Economic Reporters

In 1981 the Bank of Israel lost some $300 million, and another $70m. in the first quarter of 1982, as a result of what authoritative sources admitted was overly conservative management of the country's foreign currency reserves.

The central bank, these sources said, continued to hold on to assets in European currencies in the belief that their value against the U.S. dollar, and their interest rates, would rise again.

The central bank is currently revising its portfolio, in which there is a high proportion of European currency assets, especially Deutschmarks. However, this has not prevented further losses in the first three months of the year.

Reliable sources in the Bank of Israel say that there is still some reluctance against switching from European currency assets to dollar assets. The expectation — shared by what one source called "the best-informed international experts in foreign currency dealings" — that the dollar cannot for long maintain its high value against the European currencies, continues to keep the Bank of Israel cautious in its management of the foreign currency reserves.

Despite the continuing, albeit slowing, trend of losses in foreign reserves, the bank still hesitates to change the composition of its portfolio more than marginally. Bank officials console themselves that the strengthening of the Deutschmark and other European currencies against the dollar in April yielded the bank some $60m., which, together with some $40m. in interest on its holdings, balanced the bank's losses in the first quarter of the year.

The losses incurred in 1981 — and those that have piled up since — are mainly an accounting loss, different sources in the Bank of Israel explained. As long as the bank keeps part of the foreign reserves in currencies other than the dollar, and these weaken against it while the reserves continue to be quoted in dollars, the balance will necessarily show a dollar-term loss.

By the same token, these sources said, Israel gained in the late 1970s up to 1980, when the dollar deteriorated against European currencies.

If Israel's foreign reserves had been linked to a basket of foreign currencies, such as the special drawing rights of the International Monetary Fund (SDRs), or somet

Israel flag and police in Taba anger Egypt

By DAVID LANDAU
Post Diplomatic Correspondent

The problem of Taba Beach, near Eilat, continues to cloud Israel-Egypt relations despite an interim agreement signed last week which was to have relieved the dispute pending a final settlement.

Egyptian negotiators were angered and aggrieved this week to find an Israeli flag fluttering over Rafi Nelson's holiday village on the disputed beach, and to find Israeli policemen in the area. They saw these as contraventions of the interim agreement.

Yesterday, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir received a letter from Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali urging a speedy solution to the dispute.

Egyptian officials say openly that they suspect and fear Israeli foot-dragging over Taba. It was such suspicions and fears that prompted President Hosni Mubarak to write to Prime Minister Menachem Begin on April 20, urging a "formula for settling this disagreement by arbitration by a certain date...I cannot emphasize to you adequately the need to avoid any controversy in the months and years to come."

In the event, Egypt was forced to drop its demand for a deadline date for the aribitration process, in the face of determined Israel resistance. The interim agreement, engineered during days and nights of pre-withdrawal shuttling by U.S. Under-Secretary of State Walter Stoessel, speaks merely of the submission of the dispute to the process (of "conciliation..or arbitration") provided for in Article VII of the peace treaty.

But the suspicions and fears persist in Cairo, and among Egyptian officials involved in the negotiation. They regard Israel's preference for "conciliation" rather than "arbitration" as evidence of Israel's desire to delay, and also of its lack of confidence in its own legal case. (In "conciliation," the conciliator's findings are not binding on the parties; in "arbitration" the arbitrator's ruling is final.)

Talks held in Taba and in Tel Aviv this week were designed to "establish arrangements" for Taba during the interim period pending a final settlement. The two sides were to have drawn up agreed guidelines for the Multinational Force and Observers (MFO) who are to supervise the area during the interim period.

But the atmosphere was soured, according to Egyptian sources, by the presence of Israeli police in Taba, and of the Israeli flag there, when the negotiators toured the site. The talks ended without agreement.

The Egyptian sources said Israel seemed to want the disputed site to be "de facto Israeli," despite the interim agreement that it remain in limbo pending a final settlement. (The agreement does provide, though, that "activities that have been conducted in these areas shall continue." This includes the Rafi Nelson village and the building of a large hotel complex at Taba.)

Israel, said one Egyptian source, sought to use Taba now "as a card against us," now that the rest of Sinai had been evacuated. Mubarak, in his letter to Begin of April 20, wrote that Taba "has a symbolic significance to our people."

cepted the latest proposal put to them and we could have had a cease-fire in place by 5 p.m. tomorrow." (6 p.m. Israel time.)

Amid the diplomatic maneuvering, it appeared that both Britain and Argentina were sticking firmly to positions which both have held since the crisis erupted early last month.

Britain affirmed again that Argentia must pull out its troops, which moved onto the Falklands on April 2, before talks begin on a political settlement.

Argentina repeated its demand that Britain recognise its sovereignty over the Falklands, which it calls the Malvinas.

Although no details have been disclosed of either the UN or the Peruvian initiatives, both are believed to call for a cease-fire' an Argentine withdrawal from the islands and the removal of the British task force from its battle stations.

Britain said yesterday 20 officers and men are presumed dead and 24 crewmen were injured in Tuesday's missile attack on the Sheffield off the Falkland Islands.

The Defence Ministry said there were 242 survivors and only one of the 24 injured was seriously wounded.

Argentine navy ships and planes continued to comb the stormy South Atlantic yesterday for survivors of the torpedoed cruiser General Belgrano, and naval sources estimated that more than 800 crewmen already had been rescued.

Israeli vehicles. Several youths were arrested.

In the northern part of the strip, some 250 students demonstrated outside a paramilitary outpost (ma'ahaz) which has been the focus of demonstrations for several weeks. Ten demonstrators had been injured there the day before.

Near Khan Yunis, youths rolled a barrel on the main road towards a car with settlers from the Katif Region in the southern part of the strip, but there were no injuries.

But it was all quiet on the West Bank yesterday — almost.

Some stone throwing in Nablus and the waving of Palestinian flags at Yabad at the funeral of four youths killed earlier this week when an explosive charge they were handling went off, were the only events recorded by security authorities.

There were no arrests and no injuries.

CABINET SURPRISED

Israel for its part has consistently maintained that Jerualem is not an issue in the autonomy negotiations, the whole city being part of sovereign Israel and not part of the west bank.

Israeli sources trace the hardening of Begin's position back to the dispute with Egypt at the end of last year over President Hospi Mubarak's intended official visit to Israel. That trip was eventually shelved because of the president's refusal to go to Jerusalem and the premier's adanant insistence that he do so.

Israel was deeply hurt by Mubarak's conduct then, coming as it did soon before the final Sinai withdrawal, a time of tension and misgivings among Israelis. Mubarak's action was seen as a hardening of Egypt's position — in view of the fact that the late President Anwar Sadat had visited Jerusalem — both the western and the eastern parts of the city — in November 1977, at the start of the peace process.

The Egyptians rejected this argument, contending that Sadat's historic visit was a unique event that could not be cited as a precedent. In subsequent visits by Sadat, they noted, Jerusalem was studiously avoided, the late president preferring to meet with Begin in provincial towns (Beersheba, Haifa, POphira).

The Egyptians explain their presidents' reluctance to visit Jerusalem in terms of the Arab world's sensitivity on the whole issue of the holy city. Egyptian diplomats stationed in Israel and visiting Egyptian ministers regularly transact official business in Jerusalem — except for the autonomy talks.

Begin's toughened stance regarding Jerusalem as the autonomy talks venue has naturally given rise to troubled speculation among diplomats and other observers here. Some wondered openly if Begin is actually aining for a total breakdown — or at least a long freeze — of the autonony talks. His assertion that Egypt would be "responsible" if that happens has triggered fears that he would claim a "material breach" of the Camp David accord — and move to annex the West Bank.

But the Egyptians are determined not to be rattled by this inputed threat. "What's the difference?" asked one Egyptian official this week. "As far as Mr. Begin is concerned, it's annexation now, or annexation later." This was a reference to Begin's pledge in the Knesset that after five years of autonomy, Israel would "advance its claim and right" to sovereignty over Judea and Samaria. "His statements are not encouraging for Egypt," the official contended.

In Jerusalem yesterday, officials close to Begin professed themselves well pleased with a remark by the U.S. State Department spokesman that the Camp David accord "does not preclude" a Palestinian state, nor annexation by Israel, after the autonomy period.

Some reports from Washington had pointed out that this was the first time the State Department had publicly entertained the possibility of a Palestinian state. But the Begin aides noted that by the sane token it was the first time the State Department had entertained the idea of Israeli Annexation.

Israel cuts Cyprus flights in bid for landing rights

By JOSHUA BRILLIANT
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Cyprus Airways cancelled yesterday's flight here after Israel forced the Cypriots to reduce their weekly schedule from three flights to two.

The Israeli move was designed to pressure the Cypriot government into granting El Al a permit to fly to Larnaca. The national carrier stopped flying to Cyprus some seven years ago during the Greek-Turkish war on the island and has been unable to resume service partly because there is no air agreement between the two countries and, partly, according to one official, because of PLO pressure on Cyprus.

Service between the two countries has been provided by Cyprus Airways' three weekly BAC-111s. Usually the 104-seat planes have been full.

An official at Ben-Gurion airport predicted that the airline will now fly Boeing 707s here instead, to accommodate demand on the route. But an Israeli official said he was not troubled by the prospect. The forced cutback was designed to prove that Israel means business, not to cause problems, he said.

Meanwhile diplomatic sources said they hope to solve the problem after talks with the authorities in Cyprus, where a new minister of transport has just taken office.

Youth centre for fallen son is renamed for U.S. donors

By MICHAL YUDELMAN
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A local couple who contributed and raised money for a community centre named after their son, killed in the 1967 war, were distraught to see the building closed down recently and renamed for some American donors who had sent money through Project Renewal.

The Beit Oren centre has been standing in the Neveh Sharett neighbourhood since 1971, after David and Doris Moushine, together with relatives and friends of their son Oren, contributed to its construction. By agreement with the Tel Aviv Municipality, it was to bear his name forever, and the couple was to be consulted in the event of any change in its structure.

But a few weeks ago, on one of their regular visits to the youth centre, the Moushines were shocked to see a huge sign announcing that the city of Tel Aviv, Project Renewal and the Jewish Agency were building the "Eileen and Bonnie Mandel Community Centre."

A "cornerstone" ceremony had been held a short time before, attended by the Mandels of Cleveland, who contributed some $1 million. The existing building was closed for the occasion, its furniture and equipment, also contributed by the Moushines, removed along with the sign "Beit Oren."

The Moushines, who were not invited to the ceremony, say that they had agreed to the city's intention to add a section to the centre. "But we were not told that its name would be changed," David Moushine said.

Head of the municipality's youth, culture and sports division Yitzhak Artzi said that the promise to the parents will be kept. The centre will continue to be called "Beit Oren," while the new section alone will bear the American contributors' names.

"For the first time we had nowhere to go on Memorial Day. We don't know where all the furniture and equipment have been taken. Walls have been torn down — without consulting us, as the agreement specifies," Doris Moushine said, almost in tears.

"We feel like the parents of the centre, its workers and the children who go to courses there. I am so hurt I cannot sleep at night," she continued.

EL AL

implementing last Sunday's decision to ground El Al on religious holidays.

The cabinet's decision was taken in accordance with the coalition agreement with the ultra-Orthodox Agudat Yisrael, which says the national carrier's planes will not take off, fly or land on the Sabbath and Jewish holidays.

In advocating the sale of El Al, Ehrlich said it was not because of the Sabbath flights, "but because El Al has reached a situation whereby unless it is sold... to public or private hands or both... it will collapse. I don't believe we can revive it," he said.

Ehrlich was apparently alluding to the fact that even if the airline continues flying on holy days it expects to lose some $40 million, raising its accumulated deficit to at least $160m.

He thus seemed to concur with Transport Minister Haim Corfu, who had told the Knesset Finance Committee on Wednesday he believes El Al could not bear an additional yearly $30m.-to-$40m. loss resulting from a cessation of Sabbath flights and would have to be sold.

Agudat Yisrael's Shapira said he, too, would support the sale. He recalled the Zim shipping line had lost money when it was government-owned, but moved to the black after it became a private enterprise. However, he insisted, the new owners must undertake not to operate it on the Sabbath.

The proposed sale was sharply criticised by the national carrier's president, Yitzhak Shander. "I find it hard to believe someone is looking for an excuse to get rid of El Al," he said. "I see no reason to sell the airline .. or how that will solve the problem. The company is essential to Israel — its tourism, security, air connections. We must not give it up."

Maof flies its Boeing 720 to Cologne and Hamburg, and Arkia flies its Boeing 737 to Munich and Frankfurt. Their operators' licences do not say when they may or may not fly, but the law governing hours of rest stipulate that a special governmental committee grant permits for workers to be employed on the Sabbath.

Arkia had been told, at least orally, that it may operate on the Sabbath, but Maof never applied for the required permit.

Jerusalem Post Reporter Sarah Honig adds:

There is increasing support within the Likud for the sale, both on grounds that this would be best for the airline and the tax-payer, and also because once El Al is in private hands the government would not be bound to impose a Sabbath grounding on its planes.

Rich getting richer, poor poorer

40% gap in income of Sephardim, Ashkenazim

Post Economic Reporter

The gross income of urban wage earners from North African and Asian countries is 40 per cent lower per capita than that of salaried workers from Europe and the U.S. and the gap between rich and poor in cities is widening.

These findings of the Central Bureau of Statistics are behind MK Yair Tzavan's (Alignment) urgent motion to the Knesset yesterday about growing inequality in Israeli society.

According to the figures, the incomes per household in Sephardi families in 1981 were 20 per cent lower than those of Ashkenazi wage earners, compared with a 15 per cent difference over the previous four years.

The upper two deciles in cities earned 39.7 per cent of the total gross income in 1981 compared with 37 per cent in 1976, while the lower two deciles received only 6.7 per cent, compared with 8.3 per cent in 1976.

Families whose head immigrated from Asian or African countries make up about 47 per cent of the lowest decile, and only 12 per cent of the upper decile. Four years ago they made up 51 per cent of the lower decile and 11 per cent of the upper decile.

Suspect in girl's murder admits molesting children

By JEFFREY HELLER
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — David Levy, the 58-year-old Bat Yam man being held in custody in connection with the Nava Elimelech murder, yesterday admitted he had sexually molested three girls.

An investigation into the former shoe-leather cutter's alleged involvement in the Elimelech case turned up eight instances in which Levy is believed to have performed indecent acts on children during the past two years, police told District Court Judge Arye Even-Ari.

Levy was indicted yesterday on five charges of unlawful sexual relations with a boy and indecent acts toward four girls.

He pleaded guilty to three molestations but denied the other charges.

A police representative told Even-Ari that Levy is suspected of an additional four sexual offences and that investigators are trying to track down his alleged victims.

Levy's lawyer contended that his client is a sick man and the police representative said the results of a psychiatric examination would be available in a few days.

Even-Ari ordered Levy held until the end of criminal proceedings against him.

In a separate session yesterday, Magistrate Eliahu Matza remanded Levy for an additional nine days in connection with the Elimelech murder. Mazal Elimelech, Nava's mother, was in the courtroom. She wore a wig and dark glasses.

The suspect, who once worked for the 11-year-old Nava's father, Mahlouf, and was fired for habitually coming in late, lives near the spot where the girl was last seen, on March 20. He was arrested April 18 after police ran a check on former sexual offenders residing in the Bat Yam area. Levy was convicted in 1974 for molesting a boy.

Police found pornographic pictures, news clippings of missing persons and a negative of a girl engaged in a sexual act in Levy's apartment, but have not uncovered any evidence that directly links him to Nava's murder.

The fifth-grader's severed head and thighs were found March 29 on the Country Club beach.

Ministry staff to fight Tami 'patronage'

By CHARLES HOFFMAN
Jerusalem Post Reporter

Senior civil servants and the Social Workers Union have launched a campaign to prevent what they see as the design of new Minister of Labour and Social Affairs Aharon Uzan to replace senior ministry career officials with political appointees from his Tami Party.

The head of the senior civil servants organization, Shlomo Diyon, said yesterday on Israel Radio that his group had asked the Histadrut to try to block Uzan's alleged plan. Diyon said he was referring to officials below the level of director-general, whom a minister is permitted to replace.

The head of the Social Workers Union, Raya Retig, appealed to Prime Minister Menachem Begin to use his influence to prevent the wholesale replacement of experienced officials. She said that since the ministry has already suffered from being without an active minister for many months, now is the wrong time to remove them. They are especially needed now, she added, to help the new minister and his staff learn the ropes.

So far Uzan has announced his intention of replacing only the ministry director-general, who has in any case resigned, and the director of the National Insurance Institute, Rafi Roter. Begin told Uzan on Tuesday that he is not pleased with the plan to replace Roter.

Shostak: Health in areas improved

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Health standards in the administered territories have improved significantly since Israel captured the areas in 1967 and statements to the contrary are untrue, Health Minister Eliezer Shostak said yesterday in Geneva.

Speaking before the World Health Organization's general assembly, Shostak said that one result of improved health care was the decrease of the infant mortality rate from 100 to 30 per thousand.

He also said Israeli hospitals provide residents of the territories with services not available in their areas.

In 1967, Shostak said, 50 per cent of the work force was unemployed, and 70 per cent of the population received welfare aid. Since then, better economic conditions have raised health standards.

Shostak also called on all countries to adopt compulsory national health insurance schemes.

Soviet medic olim blast 'discrimination'

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Medics who immigrated from the Soviet Union strongly protested yesterday against what they term the "illogical, illegal, degrading, bureaucratic-formalistic" attitude of the Health Ministry and the Israel Medical Association towards doctors who graduated in Soviet universities.

The organization of Soviet medics demanded that the prime minister appoint an investigation committee to look into alleged discrimination against Soviet-trained doctors in Israel, said Dr. Juli Nudelman, chairman of the organization.

There are about 300 doctors whose diplomas, obtained in the Soviet Union, are not recognized in Israel. "This flatly contradicts the assurance, made as late as March 1977, by the Jewish Agency that doctors would have no difficulty in finding jobs in their sphere of specialization," Dr. Nudelman said. He also said that he wants the special examinations that foreign-based doctors have to pass rescinded for doctors who came here on the strength of assurances from the Agency.

The difficulties encountered by former Soviet doctors in Israel are trumpeted by the Soviet press, "and this is partly the reason Soviet doctors fail to reach Israel," Dr. Nudelman said.

Haifa stevedores set world loading record

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — The stevedores of Haifa port have been cited for record citrus loading by the international shipping weekly, Fairplay.

In a recent issue the London-based paper said that 14 teams of Haifa stevedores managed to load a record number of 5,882 pallets, holding 282,336 cases of citrus, on the modern Swedish reefer Winter Star. The average rate was 70 pallets per team, another record.

Yesterday, the 20-millionth case of citrus fruit this season was loaded in the port. Citrus exports from Haifa will end next week, with another 300,000 cases due to be shipped. This compares with 24 million cases shipped from Haifa last year.

Golan Druse hold mass protest demonstration

Jerusalem Post Reporter

MAJDAL SHAMS. — Thousands of Arabs and Druse from Galilee villages and the Golan Heights attended a demonstration here yesterday to mark the 40th day since the death of Sultan Basha Atrash, the Syrian Druse leader.

Under a huge picture of the late leader and the national Druse flag and black flags, the demonstrators called for further unity to foil the government's decision that all Golan residents have Israel ID cards.

Dozens of police were present in the Druse villages, but they did not intervene or disturb the largest protest march yet to be held here since the annexation of the Golan to Israel in December.

GRANTS. — The Organization of North African Jews yesterday awarded 400 scholarships worth IS750,000 to high-school students in 85 schools all over the country.

More Egyptian artists to visit soon

By MICHAL YUDELMAN
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Egypt's "best artists" will visit Israel in the coming months, Deputy Culture Minister Yusuf Shauki promised on Wednesday, "as a sign of her sincere desire for peace."

The current participation of 180 Egyptian folk dancers, members of the national orchestra and choir in the Tel Aviv festival is "just the beginning," Shauki told reporters. The deputy minister himself is scheduled to give a series of lectures at the Rubin Academy of Music in Jerusalem, and an Egyptian choir will come next Christmas to participate in a religious choir convention.

After the press conference, a cocktail party held for the visitors turned into a cultural happening, with the Egyptians singing and dancing in traditional costumes to the delight of Israeli artists who came to meet them.

Egyptian orchestra conductor Professor Abdul-Halim Nuweira, brother-in-law to the late president Anwar Sadat, said at the press conference that Israeli and Egyptian music have much in common and must work together to "maintain the tradition of oriental music."

The Egyptians are the first guests of the recently opened Mandarin Hotel, which is hosting them free of charge for the duration of their stay.

VIPs attend dedication of Georgian synagogue in capital

By JUDY SIEGEL
Jerusalem Post Reporter

The central synagogue of the Georgian community — a modern, octagonally shaped building in Jerusalem's Romema quarter — was dedicated yesterday in the presence of President Yitzhak Navon and hundreds of Georgian immigrants.

Navon, who also attended the cornerstone-laying ceremony three years ago and who donated a set of Mishna to the synagogue, said he hoped the building would be not only a house of prayer but also a house of study.

Absorption Minister Aharon Uzan donated silver rimonim (Tora scroll decorations) to the synagogue, which was named in honour of the Georgian community's 91-year-old rabbi, Ya'acov Tzvaroshvili. Before the ceremony, hundreds of Georgian men from around the country passed by the venerable sage and kissed his hand.

The handful of women present, the older ones' faces peeking out of colourful bandannas and the younger ones in more modern dress, stood inconspicuously at the edge of the crowd. The Jerusalem Youth Mandolin Band played a number of tunes, including an incongruous Never on Sunday.

The Georgian Jewish community lived in the western part of Transcaucasia for 2,500 years. More than half of the community came on aliya in past decades. Only 7 per cent dropped out rather than come to Israel, and only 3 per cent of those who came on aliya left.

Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek noted that his city was very proud of the Georgians. "They were the first to dare demand the right to come on aliya. It was then a most heroic act." Kollek's Jerusalem Foundation donated IS60,000 for finishing the synagogue's social hall.

Road safety track named for murdered Vienna councilman

By ERNIE MEYER
Jerusalem Post Reporter

The cornerstone was laid yesterday for a children's road safety training ground named after Vienna city councilman Heinz Nittel, who was murdered by a Palestinian terrorist a year ago.

The training ground, at the end of Jerusalem's Valley of the Cross, with easy access from Gaza Road and Rehov Herzog, is the gift of the City of Vienna and the Austria-Israel Friendship Society.

On hand to sign the memorial scroll, to be mortared into the cornerstone, were Nittel's widow Elisabeth, Austrian Ambassador Dr. Otto Pleinert, member of the Austrian parliament and president of the friendship society Walter Schwimmer, Vienna municipal councilman Erik Hanke, Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek, and other dignitaries.

Kollek spoke in Hebrew and in German, and later also translated the addresses given by the guests for the benefit of the several hundred school children present. He recalled that Nittel had visited him only one month before he was killed. "His friendship for Israel cost him his life," he said. The mayor thanked the Austrians not only for their financial help, but also for their presence.

The road safety training ground, on a four-dunam area donated by the Jerusalem municipality, will cost about $175,000 and is scheduled to open in autumn. It will contain traffic islands and signs, "real" traffic lights, pedestrian crossings and bicycle paths, municipal traffic department head Avraham Gielchinsky said. "Younger children will drive pedal cars around the course; it is important that they learn to understand all aspects of traffic," he said.

Similar training grounds already exist in Tel Aviv and Herzliya. School classes will be taken to the training grounds by their teachers as a regular part of their studies. Instruction will be by experienced policemen and policewomen.

Harman to stay on as HU president till 1983

Jerusalem Post S Staff

Avraham Harman yesterday agreed to stay on as president of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem until the end of 1982, he told the final session of the annual board of governors meeting on the Mount Scopus campus. A committee headed by former Supreme Court justice Haim Cohn is searching for a successor to Harman, who has been in office since 1968.

The board re-elected four university vice-presidents: Bernard Cherrick, Simcha Dinitz, Prof. Alex Keynan and Prof. Yoash Va'adia. Prof. Michael Ottolenghi was elected vice-president and dean for research and development, replacing Prof. Michael Schlesinger, who completed a five-year term.

Pre-1948 HU alumni to hold Scopus reunion

Hebrew University alumni who studied on the Mt. Scopus campus before it became inaccessible after the War of Independence in 1948 are holding a reunion there on Tuesday. They will be shown around the new campus and meet university officials, the university spokesman announced yesterday.

1,118,800 Jews live in New York City

Jerusalem Post Correspondent

NEW YORK. — The 1,118,000 Jews living in New York City make up almost 16 per cent of the population in the city, according to a survey published on Tuesday by the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

The previous survey — conducted in the area in 1970 — put the number of Jews in the city at 1,228,000.

The borough with the most Jews is Brooklyn, with 411,400; but the greatest concentration is to be found in Manhattan, where they constitute 20 per cent of the population. In the three counties of Nassau, Westchester and Suffolk there are 549,900 Jews, and 1,668,700 Jews in the eight-county area.

SUMMER CAMPS. — About 20,000 young people, 17,000 of them from abroad, will be attending the 13 Jewish National Fund summer camps this year, the JNF spokesman announced yesterday.

HEALTH. — A symposium on health and biomedical sciences on the occasion of Hadassah's 70th anniversary was held yesterday at the Maiersdorf Faculty Club on the Hebrew University's Mount Scopus campus.

Mrs. Walesa not allowed to visit her husband

WARSAW (AP). — Danuta Walesa yesterday confirmed reports she was denied permission by martial law authorities for the first time to visit her interned husband, Solidarity union chief Lech Walesa. A government spokesman told her "it is not an appropriate time."

Mrs. Walesa confirmed the report in a brief telephone interview from her home in Gdansk.

Walesa has been interned along with thousands of other union leaders since the independent labour organization was suspended by martial law decrees issued last December 13.

Mrs. Walesa was unable to comment further on the report as the connection with Gdansk went dead moments after her initial statement. Asked if she had been denied permission to see her husband recently, Mrs. Walesa replied "Yes, that's true."

Meanwhile, a Polish military court has given a 15-year prison sentence to a pilot who fled February 12 to West Berlin in a Polish Airlines plane, the Polish news agency PAP said yesterday.

The pilot, Czeslaw Kudlek, was sentenced in absentia since he remained in the West along with the co-pilot and several relatives.

PAP said Kudlek also received a six-year suspension of public rights, confiscation of property and a 10-year ban on working in his profession.

Another pilot, Andrzej Smielkiewicz, was sentenced in absentia to eight years in prison for remaining in the West after his plane was hijacked to West Berlin, PAP reported. The agency did not say when the hijacking occured.

Three planes have been hijacked to West Berlin since the start of martial law.

Chief of Hitler's 'Phantom Army' dies

HAMBURG (UPI). — Gen. Walther Wenck, who commanded Adolf Hitler's "Phantom Army" in the battle for Berlin in the last days of the Third Reich, has died at the age of 81.

Wenck, who after the war became general manager of an armaments firm, died May 1 after a traffic accident, but his death did not become known until yesterday.

Wenck was commander of what is called the "Phantom Army" that existed only in Hitler's imagination as he directed the war from his Berlin chancellery bunker against Russian troops who were only a few blocks away.

"Where is Wenck?" Hitler repeatedly asked his aides and military advisers. "When will Wenck and the 9th Army join?"

Hitler had ordered Wenck to move his 12th Army, which was in the Potsdam area south of Berlin, north to join the 9th Army to break through the Russian encirclement. However, Wenck's forces, composed mainly of hurriedly recruited 16- and 17-year-olds and labour units, had been liquidated long ago.

The remnants of his army and the 9th Army were retreating westward to escape the Russians in the hope of being captured by the British or Americans west of the Elbe River.

Hitler's orders for Wenck to counterattack still were being sent into empty air on April 28, 1945, just two days before Hitler and Eva Braun, his bride of a few hours, killed themselves.

Wenck made it to the West and was captured by the Americans.

Iraq prepares 'final attack' on Iran forces near Karun

Post Mideast Affairs Reporter and agencies

Iraq claimed yesterday that it was poised for a "final assault" on the Iranian bridgehead on the west bank of the Karun River, scene of some of the fiercest fighting in the 19-month-old Gulf war.

Following initial successes in crossing the Karun and establishing a bridgehead in preparation for an assault on the port of Khorramsharhr, the Iranians appear to have been pinned down in a vicious war of attrition west of the river.

While both sides have been claiming major losses inflicted on the enemy, reports in the past two or three days appear to suggest that the battle is running in Iraq's favour, with its undisputed aerial superiority beginning to take its toll on the Iranians.

Observers have noted that the present battle could be crucial: should the Iranians succeed in recapturing Khorramshahr, the Iraqi army in Khuzestan will be effectively cut off.

Indications are, however, that Iran will be unable to emulate its impressive victory against the Iraqi fourth army in the Dezful-Shush area six weeks ago, and could even be in for a humiliating defeat.

5,000 SWAPO dead, S. Africa claims

WINDHOEK, South West Africa. — South African troops have killed more than 5,000 black nationalist guerrillas of the South West Africa People's Organization since 1978, a military spokesman said yesterday.

The spokesman said 4,330 SWAPO insurgents were killed in fighting with South African forces as the 16-year-old bush war escalated in the past four years. An additional 1,000 guerrillas were claimed killed in an air raid on May 4, 1978, on a camp at Cassinga in southern Angola.

The spokesman did not provide figures for South African casualties. In 1981, by unofficial count, South Africa reported several dozen soldiers killed, compared with nearly 1,500 guerrillas.

SWAPO, operating from bases in neighbouring Marxist-ruled Angola, has been fighting to dislodge South Africa from the mineral-rich territory, also called Namibia, which South Africa rules under a League of Nations mandate revoked in 1966 by the UN.

Meanwhile in Johannesburg, three leaders of a trade union representing 70,000 members appeared in court yesterday on charges under South Africa's tough anti-terrorism laws. They had all been detained for at least several months.

No details were given of the charges against the three: Thozamile Gqweta, the South African Allied Workers' Union president, Sam Kikine, its general secretary, and Fiza Njikelana, the national organizer. (AP, Reuter)

S. Africa firm over ban on black

PHILADELPHIA (Reuter). — The South African government has refused to lift a banning order on Winnie Mandela, wife of imprisoned black nationalist Nelson Mandela, for her to visit the U.S. to accept an honorary degree, a Haverford College spokeswoman said yesterday.

Haverford, a Quaker college, has awarded Mrs. Mandela an honorary doctor of laws degree marking her fight against apartheid.

The degree will now be accepted on her behalf by Adelaide Tambo, wife of another African National Congress leader Oliver Tambo, at a prize-giving ceremony on May 17.

Mrs. Mandela, 47, is currently a banned person in South Africa and restricted to a rural village where she is not allowed to meet more than one person at a time. She has been free of government-imposed restrictions for only 10 months during the past 20 years.

U.S. policies to be attacked at IMF meet

WASHINGTON (Reuter). — The burden on the world economy — imposed by record U.S. budget deficits and high interest rates — will be a major theme at a meeting of the International Monetary Fund's policymaking interim committee, starting in Helsinki tomorrow.

The largely private gathering of the controllers of the major economies takes place amid growing discontent over the global impact of U.S. President Ronald Reagan's policies.

Monetary sources said that the U.S. could be expected to come under heavy criticism because of the big spending deficits that are helping to keep U.S. interest rates at very high levels. The industrial countries and the Third World have charged that this had torpedoed hopes for any quick end to the current global economic recession.

UK captain tells how missile struck destroyer

LONDON. — Captain James Salt, commander of the British destroyer HMS Sheffield hit by an Argentine missile, said in interviews broadcast and published here Wednesday that part of the hull where the missile penetrated glowed white hot in the fire that swept the vessel.

Salt, 42, now aboard the aircraft carrier HMS Hermes, flagship of the British naval task force seeking to retrieve the Falkland Islands from Argentina, said the 270 crewmembers of the Sheffield and rescuers fought the fire for five hours on Tuesday before he gave the order to abandon ship.

Thirty crewmen are believed to have died in the attack.

"The fire had expanded to an extent that was dangerous with regard to our own ammunition magazines and missile magazine," Salt said in an interview broadcast from the Hermes by the British Broadcasting Corporation. "We were not winning that fire, beating it, we were losing," he said.

Salt estimated that within no more than 20 seconds after the missile struck, the whole ship was filled with black poisonous smoke, as electrical cables and even paint on bulkheads caught fire. The heat was so intense that it was transmitted through the hull, starting new fires.

The Sheffield lost power and lighting and lost pressure in its fire hoses.

Salt said the missile hit the Sheffield 1.8 metres above the water line, penetrated the hull and then exploded outward and upward. Salt, whose father, a submarine captain, was killed in action in World War II, said: "We only had time to say 'take cover.' Three or four seconds later the missile hit."

"We could feel the heat of the deck through [illegible] shoes. The superstructure was steaming. Paint on the ship's side was peeling off. The area where the missile penetrated the hull was white hot," Salt said. He praised his crew for their calmness, common sense [illegible] teamwork.

"The flames were dangerously close to the ship's ammunition and fuel," he said, regarding his decision to order the ship abandoned. "The whole of the working area of the ship was a roaring mass of flames. We could see right down into the engine room."

Most of the crew survived, he said, although exact numbers are still not known. They were transferred to other task force ships as well as the Hermes.

In the Hermes sick bay, men with bandaged hands and faces looked shocked and dazed. The most common injury is burns. Survivors slept on camp beds and mattresses, all their possessions lost.

"The men were quiet incredible. I have no doubt that the ship's company really saved themselves by their [illegible] sensible efforts," Salt said.

"Obviously it is a tremendous disappointment to lose your ship, but all the people I have spoken to are remarkably cheerful, philosophical and determined about the future," he said.

At 1700 GMT Wednesday the fire on board the Sheffield was said to have subsided and the ship was reported to be still afloat. (AP, UPI)

House committee approves larger Israeli credits

WASHINGTON (AP). — The House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday approved the Reagan administration's request to increase military sales credits to Israel from $1.4 billion to $1.7b.

The committee also increased the amount of security assistance allotted by the administration for Greece, bringing it more in line with the spending boost proposed for Turkey.

It approved the $465 million requested for Turkey, but allotted Greece $325m. instead of the $280m. requested. This maintained the formula, followed in recent years, of making aid to Greece 70 per cent that of aid to Turkey.

(In another development, the Pentagon told Congress yesterday it wants to sell Greece 58 towed guns for $35m. Congress has 30 days to act if it wishes to veto the proposed sale.)

The panel trimmed the administration's request for military aid to Morocco, granting the Moroccans $50m. instead of the $100m. sought by the administration. The current level is $30m. Morocco is fighting a desert war in the western Sahara.

VICTORY. — Gambian President Dawda Jawara 55, won a crushing presidential and parliamentary election victory, according to offical results yesterday returning to another five-year term of office.

Sirhan: 'I could incite killing of Ted Kennedy'

SOLEDAD, California (AP). — Sirhan Sirhan said two months ago he hoped nothing would happen to U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy, but claimed he had the power to incite his assassination by appealing to misfits and mentally sick people, an investigator testified on Wednesday.

The remarks were quoted by chief parole board investigator Richard Washington at a board hearing to determine whether a 1984 parole date should be rescinded for Sirhan, convicted of killing Kennedy's brother Senator Robert Kennedy, the day he won the California Democratic primary for president in June, 1968.

"That isn't me. I'm not an animal, an irresponsible thinker that the world and everybody thinks I am...I wish to God that nothing would happen to the Kennedys," Washington quoted Sirhan as saying in a March 4 prison interview.

He said Sirhan also said in the interview that if his parole is revoked he will "ask the Arabs...ask anybody, to help me get the hell out of prison."

In a transcript of the interview which the board heard, Sirhan was quoted as saying: "If I wanted to have Ted Kennedy killed, if I wanted to have any harm done to Ted Kennedy or any politician, I don't have to do that myself.

"With all this publicity and all the access I have to the media, I can go berserk, sir, and I can appeal to all these misfits and outcasts, mentally sick people," he said. "As many thousands of these as there are in this country, I'm bound to strike a cord with one of them."

Earlier Wednesday, prison officials testified that Sirhan had threatened to join forces with the Russians or get the Arabs to free him from prison if he were not treated fairly and paroled.

Prison counselor Carlos Hernandez testified that Sirhan's latest outburst came last January, when the Jordanian immigrant was informed that the board would hold a hearing to consider rescinding his parole date.

Hernandez said he went to Sirhan's cell to deliver documents informing him of the upcoming hearing.

"...Subject said if his parole date was taken, there would be trouble — that he would turn the Arabs loose to get him out of prison dead or alive because he did not want to live under the present conditions," Hernandez said.

Sirhan's attorney Luke McKissack told reporters outside the prison he was still not certain whether he would ask Sirhan to testify in his own behalf before the hearings end today or Monday.

2 war-loot Durers to return to Weimar

NEW YORK (Reuter). — The U.S. Court of Appeals yesterday ordered the return to East Germany of two Albrecht Durer paintings that mysteriously disappeared from a Weimar castle at the end of World War II, only to show up years later in the home of a New York art collector.

The paintings of Hans Tucher and his wife, completed by Durer in 1499, were bought by collector Edward Elicofon for $400 in 1946 from an ex-serviceman. They are said to be worth $5 million today.

East and West Germany have spent years in court fighting each other and Elicofon for the paintings. The U.S. Court of Appeals upheld a lower court ruling that said the paintings belong to the Weimar Art Collection.

The portraits disappeared from Schwarzberg Castle near Weimar after the Nazi surrender in May 1945. Court testimony established that the two works were stolen in 1945. The castle was occupied at the time by American troops.

Record-breaking sale at Christie's auction

NEW YORK (AP). — Christie's prediction that it would break the auction record for contemporary art works was realized at a standing-room, reservation-only sale that netted $3.5 million.

With dealers and collectors from the U.S., Europe and Japan, Christie's auction house in Manhattan broke the contemporary art record of $3.3 m. and matched the record for a living American artist.

The auction on Wednesday night also broke a total of 12 records for contemporary artists.

Frank Stella's Reichstag brought $420,000, equal to the price paid in November 1981 for Andrew Wyeth's Marsh Hawk. The previous Stella record was $225,000 set in November 1981.

MUBARAK INITIATIVE

Hussein has surprised some observers with the promptness of his overtures to Egypt. The day after Sinai was returned last month, he sent his first publicly acknowledged cable to an Egyptian leader in three years, congratulating Mubarak on Egypt's recovery of Sinai and inviting him to join his fellow Arabs in their "struggle for Palestine and Jerusalem."

Mubarak, however, while welcoming Jordan's gesture, made Egypt's position quite plain: true to his public pledges in the weeks and months prior to the withdrawal, Egypt welcomed rapprochement with the Arabs — but not at the expense of its treaty with Israel.

Instead, he indicated his hope that Jordan would take up the role designated for it at Camp David and join Egypt at the autonomy talks "in defending the national and legitimate rights of our brothers, the Palestinian people, and the effort to realize Palestinian control of the West Bank and Gaza and the establishment of a good model of coexistence and security in the region."

This response can probably be seen as a key to the position Egypt will be taking in the months ahead: while not rejecting the Arab call to mend fences, Cairo will probably stress its continued commitment to peace with Israel and at the same time reassert its support for the Arab claim to the West Bank and Gaza.

Other Arab countries now taking a prominent role in working for an Egypt-Arab rapprochement are Oman (which, like Sudan, did not sever ties with Egypt), Morocco, and — most significantly, perhaps — Saudi Arabia.

Oman's Sultan Kaboos is due in Cairo tomorrow as part of the bid to effect such a rapprochement, and a senior Moroccan envoy — possibly Foreign Minister Muhammad Boucetta — is also reported to be planning a visit to Egypt shortly, with a similar end in view.

Although it appears to have made no official overtures to Egypt, Saudi Arabia has been making it quite clear that it would welcome Egypt's return to the Arab fold and appears to envisage a key role for Cairo in what it earlier this week called the "peace offensive" against Israel.

Riyadh clearly viewed its own eight-point plan, floated last August and torpedoed by Syria and other Arab radicals at the Fez summit last November, as a key element in such an offensive, and just as clearly believes the plan, or some modification of it, is still viable.

Egypt at the time expressed some interest in the plan, its major reservation being that it had been rejected by Israel and was therefore not of immediate relevance, rather than any objection to its substance.

Whether or not that reservation will still stand should the plan be revived in the months ahead — as some observers believe it will be — remains to be seen.

The Odyssey Couple

The Post's Matthew Nesvisky joins Hollywood VIPs on a whirlwind UJA tour of Israel

Walter Matthau: 'It's always a disaster...' (Israel Sun)

Jack Lemmon: 'Just you wait, Walter...' (Israel Sun)

OFF THE SCREEN as well as on, Hollywood's Odd Couple are a rare pair. We trudged after Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau this week on a gruelling 13-hour whirlwind day of touring by plane, bus and foot, and the two stars never flagged for a moment. Indeed, they put in a performance that is hard to imagine other celebrities of their magnitude equalling.

They remained good-humoured and grinning in the face of endless flashbulbs, posing and posing again and again until the very last sabra had emptied his Instamatic. They signed their names enough times to form a two-man petition. They had a handshake and a greeting for everybody they met — and they seemed to meet everybody.

Lemmon does stand-up shtick even when he's sitting down. Matthau, like some obsessed politician, kisses babies when the cameras are clicking and kisses babies when the cameras aren't. From Jerusalem to the Emek, throughout the length of the Golan to a kibbutz in the Huleh Valley and back down to the capital, the Odd Couple just wouldn't quit.

The two actors are the most prominent names in a UJA Entertainment Mission comprising high-powered American film industry people. Included in the group, which is completing its visit this weekend, are day-time TV personality Monty Hall and wife Marilyn (producer of the Golda TV film), directors Arthur Hiller (The Sting) and Mark Rydell (On Golden Pond), Twentieth Century-Fox president Sherry Lansing, a crop of top behind-the-scenes personnel (producer, screenwriter, agent, attorney, accountant, etc.). spouses and occasional kids. But the attention inevitably focused on those two most famous faces.

LEMMON SAYS he fell in love with Matthau in 1964 when writer-director Billy Wilder took Jack to see Walter performing on Broadway in Neil Simon's smash, The Odd Couple (the other half of the stage Couple was Art Carney). That experience led to the pair doing Wilder's The Fortune Cookie two years later, and The Odd Couple two years after that. By then, what Lemmon calls "the obvious special chemistry that Walter and I have on the screen" was established.

"But it's always a disaster for me, working with this putz," Matthau cuts in. "We did Fortune Cookie and I had a heart attack. We did The Odd Couple and I developed ulcers. For The Front Page I was losing my marbles. When Lemmon directed me in Kotch, I actually developed a skin cancer. Now, most recently, in Buddy, Buddy, I busted my shoulder and tore my retina."

"Just you wait, Walter," Lemmon retorts. "Have I got a script for us!"

Nearly the entire UJA mission is hanging on every word of this exchange, and with the punchline they break up. It's your typical UJA group, with the usual squeals over the hardy young kibbutzniks and the sexy little soldierettes, tongue-cluckings at the Syrian border and gasps of approval at the draining of the swamps. Typical, except that the group comes from celebrity-land.

As we board an Arkia plane for our flight to the north, for example, one wag asks, "Is this the junket for the Sands Hotel?" Vegas jokes. Comparisons between the Huleh and San Fernando valleys. Abundant "sweethearting" and two wheels actually talking a deal ("Hell, of course I can get Willie Nelson!") in the lobby of the King David.

But Matthau and Lemmon lift the whole experience to another level.

On the Golan, for instance, we stop for lunch at an army camp (is there any other place to eat lunch on the Golan?) and the two stars are invited to address the troops after the "banquet."

Now get this: after shlepping around for hours on white-knuckle prop-flights and tour buses, after facing Zahal cuisine (deep-fried schnitzel, cold chips, bourekas) in a packed mess hall, after trying to keep up the pretence of dining under the constant blaze of television lights — Lemmon and Matthau are asked to speak to a bunch of young sabras who may or may not have passed bagrut in English. And they're expected to be gracious about it. And they are. And they soon have the whole corps roaring with laughter.

"I'm sorry I have to speak to you in English," Walter begins. "When I was a kid, I did study Hebrew ... (pause as a he looks at watch) ... for about five hours. All I remember is ...'Ain kelohainu, ain kemoshianu...'"

WHEN THE LAUGHTER dies down, Matthau reminisces about his days in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II. "By sheer luck," he says, "they made me a sergeant. Of course, if I had been in Israel, I would have wound up as chief-of-staff...

"But I'm overhwelmed with feeling for what you people are doing here. Stay as strong, happy and beautiful as you are. And now I'll turn it over to Jack Lemmon, who claims he's a goy. And, you know, whenever Lemmon speaks ... you can take a nap."

Wild applause supplies the bridge as Matthau, beaming from his beagle jowls, sits down and an energetic Lemmon leaps to his feet. As he begins speaking, he's asked to talk more slowly. "But I always have to talk fast when Walter's around — to get a word in!

"Incidentally," Lemmon continues, "Walter was too modest to tell you about his truly heroic exploits in France during the Second World War. Singlehandedly, he liberated an entire French whorehouse" (the mess hall explodes in laughter). "And the funny thing was, he was so naive he didn't even know it was a whorehouse — he just thought it was a large French family with a lot of daughters" (the mess hall explodes all over again).

Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau and Sherry Lansing pose with members of the IDF. (Israel Sun)

THE MAN who won an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actor in Mister Roberts (and Best Actor in Save the Tiger) apologizes to the troops for having been a Navy man in World War II. He jokes about his days in the service, and then concludes:

"I've been lucky in the course of my career to do a great deal of travelling around the world. But I can say that I have never seen such a pervading sense of common purpose as I've seen here in Israel. It's a privilege to be here, and I thank you."

There is no doubt that Matthau, who last visited this country 20 years ago, and Lemmon, who is making his first trip here, are both genuinely turned on by Israel. They deferred to the troops' every request as if they were potential investors in their next picture, and left the base as excited about having met IDF soldiers as one would expect kids to be about meeting movie stars.

Still more requests for photographing, autographing, handshaking and banter on demand awaits the group at the foot of the northern Golan, at Kibbutz Lahavot Habashan. Most of the meshek has turned out to greet the celebrities. Tiny kids like their miniature Soviet counterparts timidly step forward to offer bouquets to the guests, and squirm under the hugs and kisses they get in return. Lemmon takes it all in his stride, alternately laid-back and animated. Matthau pinches tiny cheeks and tushies and chats in Yiddish with the older kibbutzniks.

Then the guests divide up for coffee and cake in individual members' homes. Lemmon, his actress wife Felicia ("Farfel"), and daughter Courtney trail off in one direction after a kibbutz couple. Matthau, wife Carol (before her 25-year marriage to the actor began, she was married twice to the late William Saroyan), and youngest son Charles, 19, are taken in tow by the Michaeli family.

Ron and Elana Michaeli and their two youngsters are straight out of central casting. He's a handsome son of the collective soil, and she's the Jerusalem-born daughter of Moroccan immigrants.

The Matthaus and the Michaelis gather around the kitchen table — Walter inevitably ends up with an infant in his arms — and discuss the usual things auslanders want to know about collective life in Upper Galilee — the economics of it, matters of personal freedom, the security situation. Matthau expresses admiration for it all.

Later he confides to me: "We're building a new home out in California, and I'm stunned when I realize we'll have in it 22 television sets. Sometimes I get scared by all the material rewards I get."

TWO VOLUNTEER girls just happen to show up at the Michaelis' little flat with cameras in their hands. Matthau learns they are from England and Australia, and accordingly switches back and forth from comic Cockney to Strine. Then after a half-hour or so, it's time to leave the kibbutz — under the usual sheet lightning of flashbulbs.

It's bus-plane-bus again back to Jerusalem. The group is more subdued now after a hard day's touring, but the two stars are still up for interviews with The Jerusalem Post. Lemmon bewails the current economic state of the movie industry, especially in matters like getting backing for serious dramas like Save the Tiger, which took about two years just to bankroll.

He says he's had no one favourite role over his long career. "I've just been fortunate to come across some really fine scripts. That's always the hardest part of this business for me."

MATTHAU SAYS he got into acting on the suggestion of a Red Cross nurse after he was demobilized in California. "She said I should take up either journalism or drama. So I went to New York. Actually enrolled in Columbia University's School of Journalism for a while. Then drifted over to the drama classes at the New School for Social Research. Had some stage roles, including Shakespeare, then started doing films in Hollywood.

"But it wasn't until years later, when I returned to Broadway for Odd Couple, that things really took off. I teamed up with that shmgeggy Lemmon, got featured roles, saw my salary quadruple."

They are an Odd Couple, Bostonian John Uhler Lemmon III, Harvard graduate, 57 years old, and Walter Motteshansky, born 62 years ago in New York to Russian-Jewish immigrant parents. (Why weren't they cast as Woodward and Bernstein in All The President's Men?)

But their collective chemistry is up there on the screen for all to see, and their affection for each other is as genuine as their enthusiasm for Israel.

Their visit here, says Monty Hall, will do a great deal of good for the UJA, and by us that's A-okay.

THE BEGIN BYPASS

PUBLIC FACES/Mark Segal

STRANGE ALLIANCE? Histadrut Secretary-General Yeroham Meshel was all smiles after his midweek meeting with Prime Minister Menachem Begin, describing their exchange as a "cordial chat." That has caused some Beginologists to speculate that the Premier was not averse to the idea of helping the labour federation chief in his latest war of attrition with Finance Minister Yoram Aridor.

According to the theory, Begin is less than happy with Aridor's campaign to keep all economic activity in his own hands, a la Pinhas Sapir, the late Labour finance minister. Perhaps Begin agreed with Meshel that Aridor's plan for an across-the-board cut in real wages would cause too much unrest on the labour front during the coming year.

BEGIN'S COOLNESS towards Aridor is said to be due to the latter's Herut empire-building, from his seat as chairman of the party secretariat. The word at Herut is that Aridor has dared to court his chief's displeasure by campaigning in the party branches in advance of the party convention, while Yitzhak Shamir, Ariel Sharon and David Levy have not.

Aridor spends Thursdays in his 12th floor office at Metzudat Ze'ev the Herut headquarters in Tel Aviv. Shamir is there on Friday mornings, and Levy makes occasional appearances. Sharon does not maintain a presence at the Herut citadel, pinning his hopes for the future on charisma rather than organization.

WE REPORTED last week that Begin was seeking to postpone the Herut convention, now set for mid-June. But my Herut sources now indicate that the event may be put off until early next year. They say that Begin wants to avoid making the convention a Shamir-Sharon-Aridor battleground, and use it instead as a launching pad for an early election campaign next April.

ON THE RELIGIOUS front. Agudat Yisrael politicians are rarely at a loss for words. That was shown in the response of Menahem Porush MK this week to a news item about reported financial irregularities in the handling of IS20m. in government allocations designated for religious institutions linked to the wing led by Porush and Finance Committee chairman Shlomo Lorincz. Porush simply dismissed the stories as "anti-Semitic slanders."

Another example is the way coalition executive chairman Avraham Shapira dealt with Deputy Premier Simha Ehrlich's sarcastic response to the decision to stop El Al flights on the Sabbath — "Why not stop Egged in Haifa, and football in Jerusalem?" Said Shapira: "I do not understand. Ehrlich was a signatory of the coalition agreement. He was certainly not drunk at the time."

LABOUR'S plan to seek a no-confidence vote on the El Al stoppage caused one (unnamed) senior coalition politician to comment that it had taken the Likud a long time to govern, but it would take Labour even longer to learn how to be in the opposition.

LINKAGE REPORTED. In the anti-withdrawal camp, they are saying that Begin's consent to cancel Shabbat flights was extracted by none other than the Gerer Rebbe, Rabbi Simha Bunim Alter, head of the Aguda's hassidic wing. It was, they say, part of Alter's running war of attrition against mitnaged leader Rabbi Eliezer Schach of Bnei Brak, and also involved a group of Gur followers on a mission to Yamit to cool off the hotheads.

FIXING THE BLAME. Liberal Party sources are fingering Transport Minister Haim Corfu as the man responsible for the snafus on last week's Egged inaugural to Cairo. They say that Corfu "forgot" to inform Israel Ambassador to Cairo Moshe Sasson that the first bus run would have aboard a group of dignitaries, including Corfu's Liberal deputy, David Shifman, and several MKs. Shifman, who is also Tel Aviv deputy mayor, certainly would have enjoyed the red-carpet treatment and the extra publicity.

TAMI'S Aharon Uzan has taken over the three portfolios of Aharon Abuhatzeira, but the battle for the posts is far from over. After the Supreme Court rules on the ex-minister's appeal, the backers of Deputy Absorption Minister Benzion Rubin and party secretary-general Binyamin (Fuad) Ben-Eliezer plan to push their case in party forums.

DELAY SOUGHT. All is not well in the Herut youth division, where incumbent head MK Ronnie Milo is seeking to put off the election of a new chairman until after the party convention. If the voting were held today, the favourite would be Ya'acov (Yaki) Skoller, the deputy chairman of the Ramat Hasharon local council, and not Aridor political aide Gideon Sitterman.

The Herut juniors' fight looks very much like a family quarrel. Skoller and his wife, Anat, head of the Likud external relations department, were classmates of Milo at Tel Aviv's Tichon Hadash high school. They were all active in the Tel Aviv University student union, together with such prominent younger Herutniks as Michael Kleiner MK, Michael Eitan, and Michael Reiser MK, now the party organization chief. All except Reiser studied law under Prof. Amnon Rubinstein, the Shinui MK who now looks at his former pupils from the opposition side of the aisle.

PROFESSIONAL INSULT. More than 40 members of the Tel Aviv University Faculty of Humanities this week signed a letter protesting against Begin's uncomplimentary comments about Israeli historians, made in an article defending his decision to launch the re-opening of the Arlosoroff murder inquiry. The protest, organized by history Prof. Michael Harsagor, objected to Begin's statement that "I don't know who these so-called historians are ... Since the deaths of such scholars as Graetz, Dubnow and Klausner, there aren't any historians worthy of the name in Israel."

Violinist Isaac Stern finds a seat in the aisles at the Tel Aviv showing of a film which features him on tour in China. (Israel Sun)

FAMOUS NAME. Mooted as a replacement for Ya'acov Nechushtan, the Jerusalem Herutnik who has been serving as counsellor at the embassy in Washington, is none other than Binyamin Netanyahu. The 33-year-old brother of late Entebbe hero Yonatan (Yoni) Netanyahu first caught Moshe Arens' eye in 1975, when he was studying at MIT and the envoy-to-be heard him speak on Israel.

ARENS was reportedly not happy to hear that his predecessor at the embassy, Ephraim (Eppy) Evron, had held a private talk recently with Secretary of State Alexander Haig. Embassy staffers recalled a similar incident some years ago, when Evron was irked by the fact that his predecessor, Simcha Dinitz, had his own unofficial talks at Foggy Bottom.

Abba Eban, just back from the U.S., has suggested that whiskey was probably the subject of the talk between Haig and Evron, who since his retirement has become political adviser to Seagram boss (and World Jewish Congress president) Edgar Bronfman. Haig, of course, bears one of the famous names in Scottish spirits.

OPERATING ON the doctor. Former secretary of state Henry Kissinger gets a good going-over in Low Probability, Yediot Aharonot columnist Shlomo Nakdimon's new book about the political aspects of the Yom Kippur War.

In the book, brought out jointly by Yediot and the Revivim publishing house, Nakdimon says that it was Dr. K. and not Defence Secretary James Schlesinger who was responsible for the delay in arms shipments to Israel.

Incidentally, in a recent New York Magazine interview, Kissinger complained about becoming a too-frequent address for visiting Israel politicians, naming Eban and Labour chairman Shimon Peres as two examples.

UNWANTED ADVICE. Col. William Hamilton Boucher, the British military attaché, was overheard telling a friend that an Israeli officer had advised him to seek a diplomatic solution to the Falklands crisis. Boucher's response: "That's just the kind of advice you people get from time to time."

THE COUNTESS Mountbatten, one of the few members of British royalty ever to come to Israel, was the guest of honour at a Monday night reception tendered by British Ambassador Patrick Moberley. Among the guests was a childhood friend, the Hon. Judith Schechterman, wife of Herut central committee chairman Avraham Schechterman and daughter of the late Lord Sieff. The two families had been neighbours in London.

VIOLINIST Isaac Stern was forced to sit on the steps at this week's Tel Aviv Museum showing of From Mao to Mozart. Seems that someone had taken the seat set aside for Stern, who had certainly seen the film about his trip to China at least once previously.

FORMER deputy Knesset Speaker Dvora Netzer had a jolly 85th birthday party in Tel Aviv this week. She and her husband, former Mapai eminence grise Shraga Netzer, 87, talked over old times with Shimon Peres, Mordechai Ben-Porat, Ora Namir, Mordechai Surkiss and Mathilda Ghez.

THE VOLUNTEER work of Sallie Lewis, wife of the U.S. ambassador, was recognized this week when she was one of six women honoured by Bnot B'rit, the Israel women's branch of B'nai B'rith. Other honorees were Esther Hershkovitz, for her work with children and soldiers; Israel Prize winner for drama Orna Porat; Shoshana Shochat, 82, who has worked with the blind since 1945; Knesset Education Committee chairman Ora Namir; and Sara Doron, head of the Liberal Knesset faction.

NOT PING-PONG DIPLOMACY, but diplomatic tennis, is on tap at the Dan Accadia Hotel's courts this weekend, where the Diplomatic Association is holding its second tournament. Thirty entries have so far been received for the event, which is run by a committee comprising U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis, Canadian Ambassador Joseph Stanford, and Ernesto S. Gidaya, the Philippines ambassador.

Centre director Lee Berman informed me that the winner of the first event, held in 1979, was Lewis himself. Lewis and Stanford practised for the meet by playing doubles with visiting Dr. William Quandt, formerly of the National Security Council in Washington, and Shiloah Centre head Prof. Itamar Rabinovich. The match ended in a diplomatic setback, 6-4, 6-4.

Agudat Yisrael's Avraham Shapiro steps off an El Al flight from the U.S. in the midst of the controversy over the national airline. (Scoop 80)

BRANCHING OUT. The Tel Aviv Sheraton observed its fifth anniversary in an unusual way this week, by taking more than 100 members of its staff to plant a Sheraton forest in the Judean foothills. Guest of honour was Tourism Minister Avraham Sharir. The Sheraton's public relations manager, Wendy Geri, informed me that each hotel guest during the coming year will be given a Jewish National Fund certificate for one of the forest's 10,000 trees.

The forest is the brainchild of Harold Richman, the international chain's Israel vice-president and area manager. But another of Richman's gimmicks must surely take first place in the innovation sweepstakes. A bulletin board hanging above the men's room on the hotel's main floor bears clippings, in English and Hebrew, from the day's press, including weather and stock market reports and selected news items. Still, we can't but wonder how Richman will deal with the inevitable feminist demand for equal treatment.

EGYPTIAN AMBASSADOR Sa'ad Mortada has been called back to Egypt for consultations. We are curious to know whether he'll be discussing with President Hosni Mubarak two suggestions made to him last week by Gideon Rafael, the former director-general of the Foreign Ministry: that a joint Israel-Egypt peace-keeping force be established on the Falkland Islands, and that Agudat Yisrael's Avraham Shapira be allowed to settle the dispute by buying the islands and using their wool at his Carmel Carpets plant.

Future bounty

TORA AND FLORA

Louis I. Rabinowitz

THE REVIVAL OF NATURE.
Portion of the Week. Emor. Lev. 21-24
The verse discussed is 11.24

MY TORA AND FLORA column has given me a largely undeserved reputation as an expert in the flora of Israel, with the result that I am being approached more and more from the most unexpected quarters, in Israel and abroad.

Among the many enquiries which I received in one week, that before Passover, was one from the English section of Israel Radio. A non-Jewish listener had communicated with them enquiring whether it was possible that wild barley grew in Jerusalem during the month of Nissan. I replied that in a few days, on the second day of Passover, we would begin to count the Omer, which consisted of a sheaf of barley, explicitly referred to as "the first of your harvest."

As stated, however, the significance of the barley lies in the fact that, as is stated in my text, that it is the harbinger of harvests with which the land and the people would be blessed in the months to follow. The period of the Omer is that reflected in the beautiful passage in the Song of Songs: — "For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone. The blossom appears on the earth; the time of singing (of birds) is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land. The fig tree putteth forth her green figs, and the vines in blossom give forth their fragrance."

I have already referred to the extraordinary wealth of flora in the 117 verses of this love song, and by what may be a purely fortuitous accident of the seven main agricultural products mentioned in Deut. 7.7 as the choicest products of the land, only one, barley, is not mentioned. And of the two specifically mentioned in this verse, fig and vine, I wish to deal with one.

In both cases it is the first sign of the fugure bounty which is mentioned, the pagim, the green figs, and the blossom of the vine. On Thursday April 8th., the first day of Passover, on my way to synagogue, I saw my first hitherto barren fig tree beginning to clothe itself in its leaves. "Dear me" I said to myself," the fig is late this year. Not a sign of the pagim". But I was wrong. Only two days later, on Sabbath the 10th., the pagim were already visible on that self same tree.

And as the days of the Omer proceed all the other fruits of the land will appear, but mostly only in their nascent state, making it possible, at the close of that period, to celebrate the Festival of First Fruits, which is Shavout, Pentecost. But only the first fruits which the farmer had to mark and bring as an offering. The full harvest festival is Succot.

El Al will stand up to this test with honours.

Today, more than ever, EL AL is on the map.

EL AL flies, and will continue to fly, all its routes with the same outstanding service, reliability and punctuality as always.

Today, more than ever, fly EL AL.

Fly with MAOF – It's worth it!

Exactly six months ago, when our inaugural flight left London for Ben Gurion Airport, the sentiment expressed by the crew of MAOF was "...we will bring a new style to flying".
Now that six months have passed, we can state with satisfaction that we did start a new style!
The scheduled airlines, who are subsidised, were compelled to adapt themselves to this new fact, to improve their service and to try harder. Who doesn't remember the long strikes, the companies' scorn of the public, and the endless annoying delays. If there is an improvement today ..... we brought it about!

And you – the traveler – benefit!

There is no better satisfaction than to see well-established and respected airlines trying to follow in our footsteps and to imitate our standard of service, prices and style.
We were the first to offer "package tours" at prices to suit every pocket.
We were the first to lead with the system of the "DOUBLE CHARTER" – go to one destination and return from another (without additional cost).
We were the first to break the monopoly of the subsidized airlines – for your benefit!

All in all it's much cheaper!

And you – the traveler -- profit!

We do not have a fleet of aeroplanes, or an exaggerated crew of unnecessary employees. We don't have offices that attract the eye on the main street of every capital in the world, or hundreds of salesman living abroad, costing the state large sums of money.
We have only two, Boeing 720B aircraft, and a handful of devoted employees. Ground floor offices on the edge of the city, and a strong will and determination to succeed.

And you – the traveler – benefit!

We do not fly from one end of the world to the other. All our activities are concentrated around Israel, for the sake of Israel. With us, you're not "just another passenger", one of thousands; with us, you are "your Excellency, the passenger"

And you – the traveler – benefit!

Every MAOF employee knows that we are obligated to try harder and make every effort. Each and every one of our crew will do everything possible to please you – we have to!
We do not have a government behind us that will absorb our losses. If we are not the best – we cannot exist. This truth is with us every moment of every day.

And you – the traveler – benefit!

GO AS YOU PLEASE

This summer when you fly to Europe, don't book all your hotels before you leave. How many times has it happened to you that you wanted to stay in one place for a week, and you ended up staying only one day? Treat yourself this time! Book a private tour.

SPECIAL MENU ON MAOF AIRCRAFT

(as per Amos Hadad, "Ha'aretz" Aviation reporter)

MAOF, the Israeli airline company for charter flights, have on their flights a special menu. The menu differs from those offered on other airlines. For the two meals – one on the flight from Israel and the other to Israel – the passenger has a choice of two main courses. As an example: Chicken Chasseur with rice, peas and carrots, or Carbonade of Beef with new potatoes and garden peas – this is the menu from Israel. To Israel, the passenger can choose between Beef Bourguignonne with duchesse potatoes and garden vegetables, and sliced turkey with croquette potatoes and ratatouille.

An open letter to the PLO leadership from a Palestinian writer and politician

Dear PLO members,

PALESTINIANS representing the population of the West Bank and Gaza will soon meet in Damascus to discuss the problems facing their leadership, and the future of that leadership. As a Palestinian, I would like to put several suggestions before them.

You can take a major step forward — and embarrass Israel — if you exercise moderation and recognize today's political realities. Israeli extremism feeds on your extremism. You must, therefore, renounce your own violent tactics and terrorism. You signed a cease-fire in southern Lebanon with the UNIFIL forces; extend the cease-fire for one year — a year in which you explicitly forsake your strategy of violence. Devote this year to peaceful efforts and negotiation. If this truce does not prove worthwhile, you can then break it; but you should not let yourselves be provoked too easily into giving up a period of peace. Exercise a cool restraint.

You must realize that the article of the Palestinian Charter calling for the destruction of Israel seriously damages your credibility, poisons your world-wide image, and hinders your efforts. It also affects the reputation of all the Palestinian people in the eyes of the world.

No national charter is unchangeable holy writ. History shows that many great nations have abandoned elements of their national charters for the good of the people. Rather than crying out for the destruction of Israel, why don't you allow yourselves to praise the moderate Israeli voice which is honest, just, and loudly opposed to the mistreatment of the Palestinian people in the occupied areas? Those of us who live under the occupation are aware — and grateful — that the traditional Jewish sense of justice and compassion for oppressed people has been frequently outraged and has expressed its sympathy with the Palestinian people. It is to your advantage to praise the good while you accuse the wrong-doers.

THE PALESTINIAN Resistance Movement must make an immediate decision. Is it a liberation movement or a national independence movement?

The movement should adapt its strategy on the basis of the realities it faces. Its tactics should not, under any circumstances contradict the strategy of liberation. At the same time the strategy of independence should take into full account the truly possible and the obviously impossible — as well as the limits to which the movement's regional and international allies will support its goals. Mixing the two strategies and tactics will only cause us to abandon the possible for the sake of the impossible. The history of the Palestinian conflict is full of such mistakes. Our current situation is a result of this lack of vision of political realities.

You are, I know, keenly aware of the nature of the social, political and economic structures of the Arab regimes — structures which are artificial and corrupt. Such structures work only to our detriment. The fact is that all the Arab powers are not founded on the support and loyalty of the people, but on the military, intelligence and police agencies' iron grip on those people.

How do the so-called "progressive" Arab regimes and the so-called "reactionary" regimes differ from each other? They may seem to speak different languages, but they act in exactly the same way. Do you honestly believe that such regimes will consent to co-exist with a Palestinian — or any kind of — liberation movement?

Freedom breeds freedom.

I doubt, as well, that they will put up with any kind of Palestinian in*dependence movement. Have they* yet been able to tolerate a single Palestinian speaking a different language in their native lands? Do I need to remind you of the post-1967 massacres of Palestinian men, women, and children by both "reactionary" and "progressive" Arab governments?

The policy of the Arab powers towards the Palestinians is quite clear: they shall be treated as unwelcome and suspicious "guests," and must accept whatever those governments offer, even if that offer includes imprisonment, discrimination, deportation, brainwashing, and torture.

Those regimes fight only one battle and have only one ally. They fight to stay in power, and make alliances with whoever will help them keep their titles and ranks. They will give up anything, abandon anyone, and sell out everything for the sake of holding on to their power.

And you should know by now that the Palestinians have always been one of those things which those Arab regimes give up, abandon, and sell out. Have you ever heard of an Arab head of state who resigned his office because his policies led to national disasters, or caused the loss of national territories and dignity?

EGYPTIANS, Syrians, Moroccans, Jordanians, and Iraqis — as well as Palestinians — fought in the October 1973 war. How little we know today of those soldiers who sacrificed their lives for national pride and ambitions! We know only one thing — the heroes of the October War were President Sadat and President Assad. How many regimes treat their national martyrs only as a means of establishing their own personal, patriotic glorification? How can those leaders feel any sense of belonging to the Arab soil and Arab aspirations?

The Palestinian Resistance Movement was born on non-Palestinian ground. The other Arab powers grabbed hold of the movement to cover up their humiliating defeat in 1967. As time passed, it became clear that the Arab regimes expected the Palestinian movement to melt into their own national guard forces to protect their wives and children and guard their palaces. Are you content to continue serving as their personal guard and be bought as mercenaries?

'You can take a major step by exercising moderation and recognizing realities'

YOU CANNOT DENY that the Palestinian resistance leadership failed to anticipate and to counter Israel's tactics of dealing with the movement's military activity. Israel succeeded in forcing back the resistance's military forces from the frontiers into the villages and cities of neighbouring countries. This resulted in conflict and misunderstanding between the resistance fighters and the local civilian populations.

Another consequence was that many Palestinian groups came to place a higher priority on their allegiance to this or that Arab regime than on their loyalty to Palestinian goals. And in the end, many Palestinian resistance groups — either deliberately — or unwillingly — found themselves actively involved in Arab rivalries, against one another.

These confusing and crippling entanglements have to be dealt with before you can progress one more step. The Palestinian movement and its resistance forces must redirect their activities and policies specifically and only to the problems in the West Bank and Gaza.

Why do you insist on exhausting your energies mediating between North and South Yemen? Libya and Tunis? Iraq and Iran? Looking towards the future, let me point out that when a Palestinian State is finally established, we do not know whom we will need — or want — as allies and friends. We are making enemies and bedfellows whom we may not be able to afford in the future.

WHEN IT FINALLY is born, the future Palestinian state will face many tough challenges. We want this state to be completely and utterly different from other Arab states. We have had enough Arab nations of the mercy-dispensing, flag-waving and military parade-reviewing variety.

We want a genuine democratic state — especially since this new state will find itself alongside the nation of Israel, which we must admit, is an authentic and truly democratic country. Because of this, I beg of you to urge all Palestinians to start today preparing plans, projects, and agendas for this would-be democracy. Let us support, from this day, laws for free elections, a system of education and public health, a body of courts, and all the vital accoutrements of a modern, democratic nation. Let us plan for a state where any Palestinian who speaks out against the policies of a foreign minister will not be labelled as a CIA agent or a Zionist, and put in jail for his opposition.

Let us plan for a state in which the ordinary Palestinian citizen will be protected and given full civil equality as his right; a state in which the Palestinian way of life is a proud and worthy thing; and a state which will be proud to ally with other free, stable and democratic nations, rather than with reactionary, militaristic, and totalitarian regimes.

Let us not hold any illusions about Israel's establishment, that the powerful state was established only on the claim that God had promised them this land. Since the dawn of time, politics have been based on the premise that "might is right." If you honestly believe that you are capable of liberating Palestine from the Israelis, you must immediately tell us. If you are not able to do this, then you should be ready today to sit down at the negotiation table.

Time is not on our side. Israel is digging its feet into the occupied areas, and in its greed is constantly ready to take advantage of Arab impotence.

You can take yourselves as examples. You have no place in Sinai, in Jordan, in Syria, or in Lebanon. Your present situation is not due, however, to Israel alone, but largely because of the policies of the other Arab regimes. No one envies you your position — you are pressured by those Arab powers, and you are often at their "mercy."

And in the West Bank and Gaza, the protest movement is constantly discouraged by the reaction of the Arab states. Arab land is confiscated; persons are deported; mayors are fired; territories are annexed — and we watch the various Arab foreign ministers rush to the UN, calling for an urgent meeting, and then weeping when the American ambassador vetoes their draft resolution. This scenario is repeated over and over, but it has never once helped us. On the contrary, it damages Palestinian morale. The West Bank and Gaza is lost dunam by dunam, day by day, and the Israel iron grip tightens daily. And we are given national songs, fiery speeches, and condemnatory statements which the Israelis throw into the wastebasket.

It is instead the Palestinian political movement in the occupied areas which is divided, which falls into the traps set by the Israeli administration. And other Arab divisions and rivalries, unfortunately, express themselves in the problems of the West Bank and Gaza — he who does not agree with Iraq's fight against Iran is branded as a traitor to other Arab causes. He who accuses the communists of using Palestinian miseries to achieve their own political ends is seen as some sort of Israeli spy. And whoever criticizes those "big mouths" who insist on babbling about everything to hide the fact they know nothing is reported as a "dangerous" anti-PLO advocate. And then he who ~~points a finger at a mayor who at~~ first took J.D. 20,000, then $150,000, and J.D. 40,000 from his municipality's account in Amman, is denounced in the streets as a betrayer of his people.

AND THEN there is the sort who goes off to Amman or Beirut, and has lunch with some PLO official — maybe a minor functionary — and returns home as some kind of spokesman for the PLO. He then likes to threaten his neighbours not to say this or not to do that.

The question of representing the PLO is a weighty and sensitive one. It has turned into, I regret to say, a personal representation in the occupied areas.

Let me point out that our people look to the PLO as a symbol of national aspiration. You must stop those persons in the West Bank who tell the foreign media, "The PLO is our only representative," and then turn to us demanding blind obedience, blind loyalty, and even blinder eyes.

It seems to many of us that every one of those West Bank personalities who wave the PLO banner insists on speaking and behaving as if he is the PLO itself. Those individuals who speak too much do not know the time to be silent; and when they remain silent, they do not know it is time to speak out.

The struggle with Israel is not merely a matter of rousing speeches, interviews with foreign newsmen, or attending cocktail parties at foreign consulates. Nor is the struggle against Israel simply calling for a general strike because the shop of a mayor has been shut.

The struggle with the Israeli occupation should always address itself to one question: what are we planning to accomplish? What will we win and what will we lose? Keeping our children away from the schools for long weeks will not achieve anything — except to produce uneducated, menial labourers for the Israeli market. To exhaust people by demanding that they demonstrate and strike will only hasten the day when those people are bored and unresponsive. There is an art to employing the anger and energy of the Palestinian people and the political movement ought to learn it.

THE ESTABLISHMENT of the Palestinian-Jordanian joint committee has created divided loyalties, as well as giving rise to an idea of the PLO as a charitable organization. It has also led to a feeling of bitterness among people in the occupied areas that we are money-receivers and paid for what we are doing here. We angrily reject such an idea — we act on behalf of ourselves, not on behalf of other Arab nations. We are defending our own land and the future of our children and our grandchildren.

No one questions that the PLO has established world-wide support for the Palestinan cause, and we appreciate that Palestinian rights have become an issue on several international fronts, but this diplomatic

Grim consequences

The adverse effects of the peace process are becoming evident even more quickly than might have been expected, writes SHMUEL KATZ.

THE FIRST debate in the Knesset after the surrender of Sinai brought into stark relief Israel's most besetting weakness. As the country enters the most dangerous phase of its existence since the War of Independence, its citizens are compelled to ask themselves: how can one take seriously the national leaders, in government as in opposition?

Labour Party leader Shimon Peres had no difficulty demonstrating the manifest untruthfulness of the prime minister's "revised" version of the circumstances of the Knesset's decision in September 1978 that the Jewish presence in Sinai must be brought to an end "for the sake of peace." It is all plainly recorded in the Knesset protocols.

It is true that the Alignment opposition voted for that Knesset resolution only because the prime minister intimidated them into believing that if the Knesset insisted that the settlements be retained, the Camp David agreement would be nullified (and there would be war).

But Peres and his colleagues had failed to examine the significance of the prime minister's report. They knew that from the outset of the negotiations with Egypt, nine months before the meeting at Camp David, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had insisted, and indeed vociferated, that not a single Jew should remain in Sinai.

Begin, in his original "peace plan," had offered to surrender all of Sinai, including the Jewish towns and villages, with the single qualification that the Jewish residents be free to remain there — within Egyptian sovereignty. It was a small "concession" to ask for.

The settlements at the far corner of Sinai from Egypt were no threat to Egypt — if Egypt meant peace. They did, indeed, constitute an impediment to a future Egyptian offensive against Israel — which is why the Alignment government had established them in the first place.

Sadat, thus put to the test, refused to have any Jews in Sinai.

There could not have been a clearer indication at that point that he did not have peace in mind. Indeed, his vehement insistence on the dismantling of the Jewish community contained tones of sheer hatred.

His purpose was only emphasized by his explanation that all of Sinai was "holy soil." This is nonsense; a historic fabrication from any point of view — unless one accepts the doctrine that any square centimetre over which there has been Arab-Moslem rule at any time in history is "holy territory."

This would include Spain. It certainly includes Palestine. Whoever rules Palestine (and is not Arab-Moslem) is consequently an "aggressor" and a legitimate target for attack — as indeed intended by Anwar Sadat; and as intended by his successor, Hosni Mubarak, and by every Moslem-Arab leader.

From all that was said and done in September 1978, the sad fact emerges that it did not occur to Peres and his colleagues that Sadat's obstinate insistence on a judenrein Sinai signified that he did not intend peace. They were so overwhelmed with the honour he conferred upon Israel by visiting Jerusalem in return for no more than Sinai, that they overlooked their elementary duty as leaders of an opposition: to examine his motives and, indeed, to examine closely the decisions of their own government.

This failure has been maintained to this day, and it found expression anew in this week's debate in the Knesset.

No; for all of Peres' justified criticism of the prime minister over his behaviour in 1978, it was not he, any more than Begin, who told the essential truth from the Knesset podium last Monday.

The voice that carried to the people the bitter truth behind the Knesset's decision of September 1978 came from outside the Knesset. It came from the ruins of a house in Yamit on April 25, when a woman, Lora Tzarchan, sobbing bitterly, cried out over the radio: "If it's peace, Menachem Begin, why — why — do we have to be expelled? Why does our house have to be destroyed? If it's peace, Menachem Begin, why could we not live together with Egyptians? If it's peace, Mr. Begin ..."

In the background a child could be heard, apparently trying, through her own tears, to calm her mother. Maybe she did not understand that through the anguish of her mother's breaking heart there shone a deep and clear political perception, a perception lacking in the nation's leaders.

IT WAS INEVITABLE that neither the prime minister nor Peres should draw the public's attention to the comprehensive new propaganda campaign against Israel already launched by Egypt — as an introduction to the clash over Judea, Samaria and Gaza.

The incisive 11-point plan, spelling out in effect the elimination of Israel, put up by the Egyptian ambassador to the "non-aligned" conference in Kuwait, had been preceded by a virulent attack on Israel two weeks earlier by the same ambassador, Abdul Magid, at the UN Security Council. Both speeches were flagrant violations of the peace treaty.

Nor did Peres or Begin find it convenient to refer to the vicious campaign which has, in fact, never ceased in the (government-controlled) Egyptian press against Israel, against its leaders, and against the Jewish people at large.

EVEN GRIMMER consequences of the "peace" with Egypt are unfolding, and more swiftly than might have been expected.

Peres suggested in the Knesset that it was a guilty conscience over Yamit that gave birth to the astonishing proposal by the prime minister, incorporated in a formal decision by the government, that it would be forbidden in any future negotiations to agree to the dismantling of settlements.

This is a decision that has the unusual feature of being at once cynical and nonsensical. If a future government (or the present one) decides to follow the precedent set by the Begin government in 1978 and to take the dismantling process further, its majority in the Knesset will be perfectly free to rescind this decision at a later date.

The members of Begin's government and the members of his party, however, endorsed the proposal. Are they aware of all its implications?

The Camp David agreement laid down that the final disposition of "the West Bank" and Gaza would be determined by negotiations between Israel, Egypt, Jordan and the representatives of the Arab residents.

Taxed in the past with the inescapable conclusion that this ruled out Israeli sovereignty, Begin has replied that in that case the autonomy regime (by then in operation five years and more) would continue. This was a fatuous reply — but he kept on insisting that in no circumstances would he agree to any but Israeli sovereignty.

He has now abandoned that position. Now he lays down that an Israeli government negotiating in the future must insist on the continued existence of the settlements (in Judea, Samaria and Gaza). What does this mean if not that he envisages the surrender of sovereignty over territory?

In other words if he is to be the negotiatior under the Camp David accords he will, to be sure, state his demand for Israeli sovereignty. And when this is rejected, he envisages a

Israelis on the run through London town

By JACK LEON
Post Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A group of 31 Israelis will be among the 18,000 runners from all over the world taking part in the second annual London Marathon on Sunday.

The group — ranging in age from 20 to 60 — has been organized by Manchester-born Barry Shaw of Kibbutz Mishmar Hasharon, and the runners are competing in the race with the agreement of the Israel Amateur Athletic Association. Shaw, 39, was the fourth Israeli home in last December's Sea of Galilee International Marathon in a personal best time of 2 hours, 33 minutes, 34 seconds.

Shaw arranged the trip in conjunction with the London Road Runners Club, with which he has close contact. Several of the club's top athletes took part in that 1981 Galilee Marathon as guests of the Israel Runners, formed nine months ago by Shaw and Bob Misrach to promote a love of running and jogging among the population here.

"Though our group may lack some of the top Israeli runners, it truly represents running as a mass sport," Shaw told The Jerusalem Post this week. "We are a real cross-section of Israeli society, including as we do members of kibbutzim and moshavim, businessmen, professional people, students and soldiers, immigrants and sabras.

"Not only are we the largest group of runners to go out from Israel, in addition we represent almost 10 per cent of all Israelis currently running marathons."

Barry Shaw

The party includes Israel's No. 2 and No. 3 women marathon runners, Edna Fried, 21, and Mazal Shalom, 22. The latter is the younger sister of the local marathon star Zehava Shmueli, who recently took eighth place among the many hundreds of women participants in the prestigious Boston Marathon in a record time of 2.44.00, to register the best performance ever by any Israeli athlete over the classic 42.195-km. distance.

Also in the group is Israeli veterans' (over-45) champion Eliahu Komai, 50, who finished last year's Galilee Marathon in a world-class time of 2.34.10. Komai will be competing in the 50-to-60 age category in London.

The 18,000 participants in the London race — as compared to 7,000 last year — will make it the world's largest entry in a marathon to date, edging New York into second place. A total of 90,000 people registered for the run, with the final selection being made by lottery. The event, which has attracted a field high in quality as well as quantity, starts at Greenwich and finishes at the Houses of Parliament.

IAAA general secretary Aviv Stein and Hapoel athletics director David Saidi are participating in this weekend's annual congress of the Association of International Marathons, taking place in the British capital in conjunction with the race. Stein will be representing the IAAA's annual Sea of Galilee Marathon and Saidi Hapoel's Tel Aviv Marathon. The sixth Galilee run is scheduled for next December, while the third Tel Aviv race will take place in February, 1983.

UEFA Cup

Gothenburg of Sweden beat S.V. Hamburg 1:0 in the first leg of the UEFA cup final. The game was played in Sweden.

Ipswich breathe on Liverpool's neck

LONDON (AP). — Ipswich Town kept up the pressure on English First Division title favourite Liverpool by scoring a 2-1 victory over West Bromwich Albion at the Hawthorns on Wednesday night.

Eric Gates and Alan Brazil scored the goals for Ipswich, Gary Owen replied for relegation-haunted West Bromwich.

Liverpool, who did not play on Wednesday, still lead the table with 79 points from 38 games. Ipswich have 77 points from 39 games.

Manchester United maintained third spot by recording a 1-0 triumph at Nottingham Forest. Frank Stapleton scored the only goal with a fine 36th-minute header.

Manchester City made it a fine night for Lancashire by posting their first win in 12 weeks. They beat Notts County 1-0.

Tottenham moved into fourth spot in the standings by defeating Swansea City 2-1 at White Hart Lane. The injury-hit London club, fielding a number of reserve team players, had two goals from Garry Brooke to thank for their victory. Leighton James got Swansea's goal.

Stoke City eased its relegation worries by beating defending champion Aston Villa 1-0 on a goal by Paul Bracewell.

Mark Hateley completed his hat-trick with a last minute goal to help Coventry City salvage a 5-5 draw at Southampton in a thrilling English First Division soccer match on Tuesday night.

Southampton had gone ahead for the first time seven minutes from the end when England captain Kevin Keegan scored his second goal of the game, but Hateley swept home the equaliser to clinch a point for Coventry.

Wolverhampton, trounced 2-0 by Brighton, now look certain to be relegated. Leeds, who lost 1-0 to Everton, are in grave danger, but Sunderland gained a valuable point.

Spurs and Celtics are through

SEATTLE (AP). — George Gervin scored 26 points and Mike Mitchell added 24 on Wednesday night to lead the San Antonio Spurs to a 109-103 victory over Seattle thus, eliminating the Sonics from the National Basketball Association play-offs. The victory advanced San Antonio, Midwest Division champion, into the Western Conference finals against the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Boston Celtics advanced to the semi-finals through a 131-126 victory over the Washington Bullets, thus winning the series 4-1. Robert Parish scored 33 points, Larry Bird contributed 26.

Bob Lanier scored 27 points and Brian Winters 23 as the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 110-98 to stay alive in the play-offs. The Bucks now trail 3-2 in the best-of-seven series, which returns to Milwaukee for the sixth game on Friday night.

It is McEnroe

NEW YORK (AP). — Top-seeded John McEnroe never was extended on Wednesday as he crushed Russell Simpson of New Zealand 6-1, 6-2 in 60 minutes to move into the third round of the $500,000 WCT Tournament of Champions here. He will play Shlomo Glickstein in the third round.

Ivan Lendl outdid McEnroe: he eliminated West Germany's Werner Zirngibl 6-0, 6-2 in 51 minutes. Third-seeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina kept pace by eliminating Mario Martinez of Bolivia 6-4, 6-2 in a baseline battle of clay court specialists.

In other second-round matches, fifth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis outlasted Dick Stockton 7-5, 7-6; no. 10 Eddie Dibbs, the defending champion, defeated Rod Frawley of Australia 6-3, 6-2; no. 12, Mel Purcell eliminated Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid 6-3, 6-4; no. 13 Hans Gildemeister of Chile stopped Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil 7-5, 6-2, and no.16 Hank Pfister dropped Haroon Ismail of Zimbabwe 6-3, 6-4.

Diplomatic pressures

Post Sports Reporter

HERZLIYA. — Thirty-two sporting envoys from 11 countries, including four ambassadors, will use tennis rackets instead of stiff notes over the weekend to make their points. They will be contesting the Diplomats' Challenge Cup at the Dan Accadia tennis courts tomorrow and on Sunday.

The entries include Egyptian consul-general, Farouk Nasr and ambassador Samuel Lewis (U.S.) Roberto Temporini, (Argentina), David Goss (Australia) and Ernesto Gidaya (Philippines).

The diplomats will compete in both singles and doubles events, the finals taking place on Sunday at 3 p.m. The tournament organiser is Lee Berman.

other basket, the losses in recently would have been k parent — but so would earlier one well-informed sourc plained.

In answer to the questio nevertheless, the Bank of hesitated to switch its f currency holdings from low-interest currencies to the (even for the short-term ticularly after the Ottawa ference last summer made i that the U.S. was not incli reduce its interest rates and dollar slide), the source co that the central bank had e the side of caution.

This error was to the tune o cent of the country's reserves.

The Bank of Israel has repe stated that it cannot keep a reserves in one currency and central bank cannot mana reserves speculatively. The could not answer why a decis hold on to a high proport devaluing currencies and bearing a low interest rate speculative than a decision to opposite.

The management of the currency reserves has alway the exclusive domain of the B Israel, without direct involv or interference by the Tre although the latter, as well as government ministries, h decisive influence in the disp of foreign currency receipt holdings.

Thus, one source said, the sions to invest vast sums of f currency receipts not imme required for current outlays acquisition of stocks of dia were the result of pressures diamond industry and the Mi of Trade and Industry.

When the diamond market this source said, the dia producers and merchants resisted the Bank of Israel sistence on reducing these s since they expected prices again. Later the source said, were grateful that the central pressured them into selling o inventories, because prices tinued to fall.

Reasoning similar to that led to the accumulation o monds worth, when they bought, some $1b., led to purchases of high-priced cru and to cheap credits for imp raw materials for exports.

TOY FUND

EVEN MISFORTUNE has its sunny side. The director of a Jerusalem-based toy manufacturing concern was left with a huge stack of games on his hands when one of his major outlets went bankrupt. Rather than try to distribute them elsewhere, he decided to donate them to The Jerusalem Post Toy Fund, and as a result of his generosity, nearly 200 children in government institutions and in foster care will have a new game of their own.

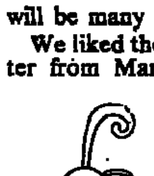
Ya'acov Nachshi, assistant director of the department of services to retarded at the Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs, has advised us that allocation given to his department by The Jerusalem Post Toy Fund provided something special for 1,000 mentally retarded children and even some adults. Some of the equipment will help make a communication bridge for mentally retarded children living at home and other children living in their neighbourhoods.

The saddest Toy Fund contribution which we received during the past fortnight came from veteran Toy Fund contributors Sam and Edith Weener, of Marblehead, Massachusetts. In the past, the Weeners have donated for happy occasions, but this time it was to honour the memory of Jonathan Corin, who was killed in a motor accident. Jonathan was only five years old when his life ended so tragically.

Contributions from school children are still coming in. Rabbi Hillel Cohn, of Congregation Emanu El, San Bernardino, California, has forwarded a cheque on behalf of the children of the congregation's School for Jewish Living "in the hope that their brothers and sisters in Israel will know the joys of many happy holidays." And Rabbi Robert Rubin, of Congregation Agudath Israel in Caldwell, New Jersey, told his synagogue students about The Jerusalem Post Toy Fund during a Purim class. As a result, the youngsters decided to take up a special collection.

Our good friend Manfred Anson, who also lives in New Jersey, has once again begun his lecture series on behalf of the Toy Fund, and has sent in the first lot of proceeds. His example has been followed by fellow New Jerseyite Marvin Green, who has been presenting colour slides of Israel to small groups for the past four years. Recently, he decided to impose a small fee for transfer to the Toy Fund, and he has sent us the first of what he hopes will be many cheques.

We liked the postscript in the letter from Marvin Tannenbaum, of Chicago, who contributed to both the Toy Fund and "Forsake Me Not."



"If needed," he wrote, "the Toy Fund cheque may be applied towards your Biblical Zoo cause."

He must have been influenced by a recent story we wrote to the effect that we were not sure just how much we were allocating towards the construction costs of the new monkey house at the Biblical Zoo because our other priorities had to be taken care of first. Fortunately, contributions to the Toy Fund have exceeded all hopes and expectations, which will enable us to do very well by the monkeys. The most recent Toy Fund contributions of IS6,498.79 bring our total so far to IS906,080.86

The list of Toy Fund donors includes:

- $100 In memory of Jonathan Corin, a little boy whose life ended all too soon — Sam and Edith Weener, Marblehead, MA.
- $50 Marvin S. Tannenbaum, Chicago, Ill (Zoo)
- $39.74 From the children of the School for Jewish Living, Congregation Emanu El, San Bernardino, CA.
- $30 Money earned by presenting two audio-visual shows — Marvin Green, Beverly, NJ.
- $18 In honour of my nephew Steve Elbogen's 25th birthday — M. Herman, Millbrae, CA.
- DM 34 Joachim Greese, Kiel, Germany.
- $10.64 Sunday School Class at Congregation Agudath Israel, Caldwell, NJ — Lori, Janice, Michael G., Daniel, Deena, Michael P., Michael S., Melissa, Chad and Rebecca.
- IS200 Esther Cohen Gaber. In honour of J. Shulow, a very dedicated friend of Mataw — congratulations on the birth of her grandchild; and with congratulations to Rudi and Rachel Doron on the birth of a grandson — Regina Boritzer, Jerusalem (Monkey House).
- IS180 In memory of David Taube, Abie and Dinah Tugendhaft — Anonymous, Jerusalem.
- $5 Susan and Robert Rubin, New York, NY.
- IS54 Happy birthday Shlomo Shapira — Anonymous, Jerusalem.
- IS30 For my grandchildren, Jonathan and Dan — Mrs. E. Lutkin, Tel Aviv.

"FORSAKE ME NOT"

WHATEVER PROBLEMS we might be undergoing in Israel, it's heartening to see that the average life-span is moving beyond the biblical three score years and ten. Many of the contributions we have received for our "Forsake Me Not" campaign over the past few days have been in honour of the birthdays of people in their eighties and nineties. The eldest is Sam Border, of Jersusalem, who, at 98, is still spry and self-sufficient.

We've also been getting a lot of contributions from residents of the Beth Joles Parents Home in Haifa, mostly in honour of birthdays of other people in the home. The latest gifts honour octogenarians Mr. S. Bein and Mrs. Jordan.

Our regular anonymous benefactor from Cimarron has sent in yet another donation, this time for $181, which is a strange sum, but greatly appreciated.

We are also happy to receive a handsome donation from the Woodville Christadelphians of South Australia. And from Philadelphia in the U.S. a most generous gift also came to the "Forsake Me Not" fund.

Bridge players from all over the country have really taken "Forsake Me Not" to their hearts. In the list of donors printed below, there are no less than five bridge groups which are supporting "Forsake Me Not" on an instalment plan.

The lists published today will be the last until the end of June. The staff of the fund-raising department is currently on vacation, but that doesn't mean that readers should stop giving. It would be wonderful to come back to the office to find an enormous pile of cheques waiting for us.

Please remember to make out a separate cheque for each fund. Send your contributions to The Jerusalem Post, POB 81, 91000, Jerusalem. Make sure that all names intended for publication are clearly printed.

With the latest gifts of IS51,655 the "Forsake Me Not" total has soared to IS1,289,849.46.

"Forsake Me Not" donors were:

- $1,000 Ruth Lotz, Philadelphia, PA
- IS5,000 The Woodville Christadelphians of South Australia.
- $100 This is to express my joy for Israel's continued sovereignty over Jerusalem — with Christian Love. Harry Maskell, Vancouver, Canada. Marvin S. Tannenbaum, Chicago, Ill.
- IS2,000 In honour of our dear mother, Mrs. Julie Meyer-Feilchenfold's 90th birthday, on May 6 — Miryam and Paul Geiger, Haifa.

ALIGNMENT BREAKUP

for the Golan, the Jordan Valley, Greater Jerusalem, the Etzion Block and the southern Gaza district, which Labour sees as vital security zones, it was agreed merely that the Alignment would "note down Peres's speech."

The new grouping's members argue that the Alignment resolution was rendered ludicrous by the compromise, and that "if nothing more can be agreed on than that, this is a shameful situation for Labour."

The group further argues that while public opinion in Israel continues to veer rightwards, the Alignment image, though at Labour's actual position, appears to be bearing further and further to the left. The partnership with Mapam, it is maintained, is a bad marriage, and divorce must be sought as soon as possible.

Among the groups that have always called for terminating the Alignment is Yahdav, headed by MK Eliahu Speiser. He contends that were Mapam to contest the elections on its own, it would not win more than three seats, rather than the seven it holds now. Mapam has not run on its own since 1965.

The latest group to join the anti-Mapam crusade in Labour is the Moshav Movement. At a recent debate in the movement grouping within the party, nearly all speakers said that "the time has come for an amicable parting of the ways," with a possible future agreement for parliamentary cooperation, but no more than that.

Sources in the United Kibbutz Movement, which is affiliated to Labour, said last night that while the movement does not intend to "climb on the anti-Mapam bandwagon," it may keep discreetly mum if a real campaign to dissolve the Alignment develops. This would mean tacit support for the anti-Alignment forces.

Sources in the Rabin camp say that it is unlikely to adopt any formal stand, but "would not shed tears" if the Alignment were to come to an end.

Peres aides say that both the party chairman and its secretary-general, Haim Bar-Lev, are staunchly against the breakup of the Alignment. They intend to tell Shemtov this at their meeting today, and to promise him to do their best to tone down the anti-Alignment clamour in Labour.

Nevertheless, a break-up of the Alignment might have some advantages for Peres. His aides hint that he has undertakings from various groups in the Knesset to enter an alternative coalition which he might set up, on condition that the Alignment with Mapam is terminated. They add that without Mapam, Peres's entry into a national unity government with the Likud would be facilitated. But at this point, they stress, Peres does not want the Alignment whittled down in size.

Labour MK Gad Ya'acobi warned yesterday that "things cannot go on as they are between the Labour party and Mapam." Addressing his party's central committee, Ya'acobi was one of several members who raised the issue of worsening relations within the Alignment. He said that "if the quarrels between Labour and Mapam in the Knesset this week are any indication of what is in store for the Alignment, then it is time to rethink and decide whether the common denominator which resulted in our last election platform continues to exist."

Mapam leader Shemtov noted that "there is considerable aggrava*tion of the anti-Mapam mood in* Labour, and this has dynamics of its own, which are already reviving anti-Alignment talk in Mapam. The situation is extremely tense now"

Recent ferment in Mapam began with the Jerusalem and Golan laws, and mounted with the debate on settlements earlier in the week. Until now, the anti-Alignment banner *in Mapam has been carried by for*mer MK Chaike Grossman. But MK Elazar Granot has also been saying in recent weeks that it would be best to dissolve the Alignment at this point. Meanwhile, Labour and National Religious Party leaders are discussing an NRP proposal for cooperation in postponing municipal elections, scheduled for November this year. Despite official denials, insiders in both camps report that this was the subject of a high-level meeting on Wednesday.

The NRP is worried that it may suffer as heavy a defeat in the vote as it did in last year's Knesset election, and Labour, while similarly motivated, is demanding promises of future political cooperation in exchange for its backing.

The Likud is seen as eager to have the elections take place on time, but it reportedly may agree to postpone the local vote until next May if Knesset elections could be scheduled for the same date and not earlier.

Coming out strongly against the idea have been Haifa Mayor Arye Gurel and Tel Aviv Labour Council secretary Dov Ben-Meir, a possible mayoral candidate in that city.

Shares inching up higher

Tel Aviv Stock Exchange

By JOSEPH MORGENSTERN

TEL AVIV. — The equity market ended the week in a volatile session yesterday, which on balance reflected a slight gain. The statistics neatly reflected the two-way action: 11 securities were registered as "buyers only," while 5 were established as "sellers only." A total of 39 issues were ahead by more than 5% while 27 were falling by more than 5%.

When the dust or the ticker tape had finally settled, the General Share Index was up by 0.28%. Trading turnovers were sharply lower and totalled IS532m.

The index-linked bond market settled down and prices were mostly unchanged.

The flurry of upside activity among commercial bank shares subsided. Among the majors, Hapoalim and Leumi still managed to eke out one per cent gains.

Among insurance shares Zur (B), with a 7.2% surge, was the only stock to make a meaningful gain.

Land development and real estate issues were roundly mixed. The Arledan group was strong, as the 0.1 share and the option were both "buyers only." The option, however, was established 20% higher. Neot Aviv was down by 10% but Rassco ordinary was up 10%.

Sharply swinging prices were the order of the day among industrials. Argaman pref. (B) was up by more than 9%, as was the case with Wire and Cables (R). The Tempo Beer group was routed, with losses running to over 11%. The same situation was encountered by the Tromasbest group of shares.

The oil sector, in the wake of an announcement of signs of oil at the Arad drilling site, was in sharp demand. Both Fedoil and Naphta were on the "buyers only" list.

New York Stock Exchange

NEW YORK. — With the benefit of some helpful news yesterday morn*ing, stocks moved higher from* the start and after some afternoon hesitation the list closed at its best level of the session.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average was up more than 8 ½ points to above 863 after slipping back to a gain of about six in the early afternoon.

Advancing issues topped 1,000 and were 5-to-2 ahead of declines. Heavy block trading yesterday morning brought volume to 67.9 million shares, up from 58.8 million on Wednesday.

The stock market got a strong boost from news of the Senate Budget Committee agreement on trimming the budget deficit, and another weight was lifted with reports of progress toward a peaceful settlement of the Falkland Islands dispute.

GAMES GALORE

Jerusalem Post Reporter

EVEN MISFORTUNE has its sunny side. The director of a Jerusalem-based toy manufacturing concern was left with a huge stack of games on his hands when one of his major outlets went bankrupt. Rather than try to distribute them elsewhere, he decided to donate them to The Jerusalem Post Toy Fund, and as a result of his generosity, nearly 200 children in government institutions and in foster care will have a new game of their own.

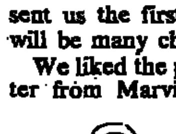
Ya'acov Nachshi, assistant director of the department of services to retarded at the Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs, has advised us that allocation given to his department by The Jerusalem Post Toy Fund provided something special for 1,000 mentally retarded children and even some adults. Some of the equipment will help make a communication bridge for mentally retarded children living at home and other children living in their neighbourhoods.

The saddest Toy Fund contribution which we received during the past fortnight came from veteran Toy Fund contributors Sam and Edith Weener, of Marblehead, Massachusetts. In the past, the Weeners have donated for happy occasions, but this time it was to honour the memory of Jonathan Corin, who was killed in a motor accident. Jonathan was only five years old when his life ended so tragically.

Contributions from school children are still coming in. Rabbi [illegible] of Congregation Emanu El, San Bernardino, California, has forwarded a cheque on behalf of the children of the congregation's School for Jewish Living "in the hope that their brothers and sisters in Israel will know the joys of many happy holidays." And Rabbi Robert Rubin, of Congregation Agudath Israel in Caldwell, New Jersey, told his synagogue students about The Jerusalem Post Toy Fund during a Purim class. As a result, the youngsters decided to take up a special collection.

Our good friend Manfred Anson, who also lives in New Jersey, has once again begun his lecture series on behalf of the Toy Fund, and has sent in the first lot of proceeds. His example has been followed by fellow New Jerseyite Marvin Green, who has been presenting colour slides of Israel to small groups for the past four years. Recently, he decided to impose a small fee for transfer to the Toy Fund, and he has sent us the first of what he hopes will be many cheques.

We liked the postscript in the letter from Marvin Tannenbaum, of Chicago, who contributed to both the Toy Fund and "Forsake Me Not."



"If needed," he wrote, "the Toy Fund cheque may be applied towards your Biblical Zoo cause."

He must have been influenced by a recent story we wrote to the effect that we were not sure just how much we were allocating towards the construction costs of the new monkey house at the Biblical Zoo because our other priorities had to be taken care of first. Fortunately, contributions to the Toy Fund have exceeded all hopes and expectations, which will enable us to do very well by the monkeys. The most recent Toy Fund contributions of IS6,498.79 bring our total so far to IS906,080.86

The list of Toy Fund donors includes:

$100 In memory of Jonathan Corin, a little boy whose life ended all too soon — Sam and Edith Weener, Marblehead, MA.
$50 Marvin S. Tannenbaum, Chicago, Ill (Zoo)
$39.74 From the children of the School for Jewish Living, Congregation Emanu El, San Bernardino, CA.
$30 Money earned by presenting two audio-visual shows — Marvin Green, Beverly, NJ.
$18 In honour of my nephew Steve Elbogen's 25th birthday — M. Herman, Millbrae, CA.
DM 34 Joachim Greese, Kiel, Germany.
$12.64 Sunday School Class at Congregation Agudath Israel, Caldwell, NJ — Lori, Janice, Michael G., Daniel, Deena, Michael P., Michael S., Melissa, Chad and Rebecca.
IS200 Esther Cohen Gaber. In honour of J. Shulow, a very dedicated friend of Mataw — congratulations on the birth of her grandchild; and with congratulations to Rudi and Rachel Doron on the birth of a grandson — Regina Boritzer, Jerusalem (Monkey House).
IS180 In memory of David Taube, Abie and Dinah Tugendhaft — Anonymous, Jerusalem.
$5 Susan and Robert Rubin, New York, NY.
IS54 Happy birthday Shlomo Shapira — Anonymous, Jerusalem.
IS30 For my grandchildren, Jonathan and Dan — Mrs. E. Lutkin, Tel Aviv.

"FORSAKE ME NOT"

WHATEVER PROBLEMS we might be undergoing in Israel, it's heartening to see that the average life-span is moving beyond the biblical three score years and ten. Many of the contributions we have received for our "Forsake Me Not" campaign over the past few days have been in honour of the birthdays of people in their eighties and nineties. The eldest is Sam Border, of Jersusalem, who, at 98, is still spry and self-sufficient.

We've also been getting a lot of contributions from residents of the Beth Joles Parents Home in Haifa, mostly in honour of birthdays of other people in the home. The latest gifts honour octogenarians Mr. S. Bein and Mrs. Jordan.

Our regular anonymous benefactor from Cimarron has sent us yet another donation, this time for $181, which is a strange sum, but greatly appreciated.

We are also happy to receive a handsome donation from the Woodville Christadelphians of South Australia. And from Philadelphia in the U.S. a most generous gift also came to the "Forsake Me Not" fund.

Bridge players from all over the country have really taken "Forsake Me Not" to their hearts. In the list of donors printed below, there are no less than five bridge groups which are supporting "Forsake Me Not" on an instalment plan.

The lists published today will be the last until the end of June. The staff of the fund-raising department is currently on vacation, but that doesn't mean that readers should stop giving. It would be wonderful to come back to the office to find an enormous pile of cheques waiting for us.

Please remember to make out a separate cheque for each fund. Send your contributions to The Jerusalem Post, POB 81, 91000, Jerusalem. Make sure that all names intended for publication are clearly printed.

With the latest gifts of IS51,655 the "Forsake Me Not" total has soared to IS1,289,849.46.

"Forsake Me Not" donors were:

$1,000 Ruth Lotz, Philadelphia, PA
IS5,000 The Woodville Christadelphians of South Australia.
